BANK DEPOSITS INCREASE IN STATE

TAX LEVIES TO AID 'PROGRAM' $2,393,346.52

Sum Does Not Include Specific Appropriations Raised by Taxation

MEETS BOND INTEREST

Total Is Expected to Increase in Future, by Officials of the State

Actual tax levies to support the state industrial program of state-owned, state-operated industries has increased annually for the last five years with one exception, an examination of the tax records of the state discloses. The increase is expected to continue as the time of maturity of the bonds issued for the program approaches. Thus far taxes have been levied only to provide for the interest payments on the bonds issued, and unless the state industries show a profit the bond issues at maturity will have to be retired by taxation.

The taxes levied by the state board of equalization to meet interest on the bonds issued under the industrial program are as follows:

1919	$258,848.32
1920	No levy
1921	137,740.05
1922	523,334.16
1923	654,380.03
1924	704,281.00
Total	$2,393,346.52

The Home Builders deficit tax is $50,306 in 1924 and was $54,455.96 in 1923, increasing the total to $2,393,346.52.

The tax levies for the various years were as follows: 1919, bank bond interest, $115,043.70; mill and elevator bond interest, $143,804.62. 1921, real estate bond interest, $137,740.05. 1922, bank bond interest, $130,832.00; mill and elevator bond interest, $91,582.00; real estate bond interest, $90,920.16. 1923, bank bond interest, $130,694.33; mill and elevator bond interest, $163,858.54; milling bonds, $75,238.65; real estate bond payment, $239,622.06. 1924, bank bond payment, $249,622.06. 1924, bank bond interest, $129,734.00; mill and elevator bond interest, $241,498.00; milling bonds, $60,367.00; real estate bond interest, $281,712.00.

For the year 1924 the tax levies in support of the state industrial program and the soldiers bonus totaled 35.5 percent of the total state tax levy.

The actual tax levies for the industrial program do not include appropriations made by the legislature for the Industrial Commission, Home Builders Association and similar enterprises at their inception, these appropriations being made out of the general fund. The state board of equalization is charged with the duty of levying sufficient taxes to meet the interest and principal payment on bond issues, and the Home Builders deficit tax of .05 mills, which will be levied for several years to retire the indebtedness of that ill-fated institution.

The first bond issues to become due are $1,000,000 Bank of North Dakota bonds in 1929 and $500,000 mill operating bonds in 1929 and 1930. There does not appear any prospect of a reduction of the taxation for the state industries, but officials expect an increase. The state's mill now shows a loss of $335,000 which must be made up before the mill profits could assist in meeting interest or retiring bonds, the Home Builders Association is defunct and the Bank of North Dakota has potentially a great loss.

WOMEN ACTIVE IN ELECTION

Taking Vigorous Part in British Struggle

London, Oct. 20.—As the British election campaign progresses, reports from many parts of the country emphasize the accuracy of one prediction made at the outset that the women would take a bigger part than ever before.

Not only are the 41 women parliamentary candidates drawing big audiences, but the wives, daughters and sisters of the male candidates are taking to the platform in their behalf with great success while the various political organizations are finding it difficult in some cases to employ all women volunteers anxious to join in the fight.

In some cases women helpers have been sent out in batches of 50 or more for campaign tours, calling at every house until the constituency is covered.

Enamel for finishing auto bodies comes from cotton lint.

HALVORSON IN CITY; PLEASED WITH RESULTS

Candidate Finds Enthusiasm Among Independent Workers, He Says

ON WAY TO BEACH

Halvor Halvorson, fusion candidate for governor, was in Bismarck today enroute to Beach where he speaks this evening. He spoke to an enthusiastic meeting at Washington, Monday evening. The band was out and a good sized crowd greeted him at the court house. Hugh McCulloch presided. A number of women were present and showed a deep interest in the issues of the campaign. Mr. Halvorson is speaking vigorously in support of constitutional government and against government ownership as a governmental policy. He draws a contrast between government by law and its safeguards against an industrial regime where the sky is the limit and there is no protection for the taxpayers and nothing between his pocketbook and the judgment of the men elected which, however, honest is bound to be costly and disastrous in the end. Speaking on government ownership of railroads as proposed by La Follette, he explains how each township would be deprived of the taxes, how schools would suffer and how much greater the tax burden upon the farmer.

"These taxes," he said, "help our schools to function and lift the burden of general taxation from our people."

Mr. Halvorson is pleased with the campaign to date. He feels that success depends upon the drive to get the vote out and asks all friends of anti-socialist government to see that everyone votes and to avoid a minority election due to apathy.

Following a meeting at Beach tonight, Mr. Halvorson speaks at Dunn Center Wednesday afternoon winding up the day with a big rally at Dickinson, Wednesday evening. Then he goes to Fargo for the big meeting October 24. He closes his campaign in Bismarck the evening of November 3.

PLAN TO PAY HAIL LOSSES MUCH EARLIER

Warrants for state hail losses will be delivered earlier than usual this year, it is announced by Martin Hagen, manager of the state hail insurance department. Losses at least for half the counties will be certified to the state auditor by November 1, he said. Warrants will be delivered to the persons suffering losses, and may be cashed with the state treasurer without delay, the surplus fund of the department being large enough to enable the department to pay losses as soon as the warrants can be delivered.

CO-OP MARKET PLAN TO GROW, LOWDEN SAYS

Former Illinois Governor and Leader in Public Affairs, Is For It

NEED OF ORGANIZING

Holds That Cooperative Marketing Is the Only Sound Plan

Cooperative marketing can succeed—and will.

That is the firm belief of Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, leader in public and business affairs of many lines, and a nominee for the Republican vice-presidential nomination who declined it because of the broad program of urban and agrarian cooperation in which he is engaged.

Mr. Lowden came to Bismarck today in a special car attached to Northern Pacific train No. 1 and speaks here tonight on national campaign issues. His campaign tour for the Republican National Committee will carry him into Montana, Washington, Utah, New Mexico and other states.

Mr. Lowden knows something about farming. He owns a great farm 100 miles west of Chicago, is president of the Holstein Association of America and president of the American Dairy Federation. Recently he has been engaged in promoting cooperative marketing. As head of two great dairy organizations, Mr. Lowden first of all argues cow testing associations, believing they are the basis of successful dairying.

Can Succeed
"Do you think cooperative marketing can succeed in all lines of agricultural products?" former Governor Lowden was asked.

"I haven't the slightest doubt of it," he replied emphatically. "Of course," he added, "there is more difficulty with respect to some commodities than others. But the principle is sound in all."

"I hope to live to see the day," continued Mr. Lowden, "when all agricultural products will be marketed through cooperative marketing associations."

Asked if he favored cooperative marketing instead of governmental agencies, Mr. Lowden declared: "I think the cooperative commodity organization is the only permanent remedy, even if some of these other temporary devices are adopted."

"I think very decided progress has been made along every line of cooperative marketing," continued Mr. Lowden. "There will be setbacks from time to time, there always are mistakes made, but the movement as a whole is moving forward satisfactorily."

Not Real Setback
Asked if present conditions, with good prices, will affect the movement, Mr. Lowden said:

"Better prices may temporarily blind some of the farmers to the need of organization, but I do not think it will amount to a real setback."

Mr. Lowden, reviewing his efforts to promote organization along cooperative commodity lines, said that he had emphasized in a speech a few days ago the necessity of organization among farmers if farm prices are to be stabilized and the proper relationship between the farm and other lines of business is reestablished.

Educational Work

Mr. Lowden is engaged chiefly in educational work, entirely volunteer on his part, and he is, among other things, directing his energies toward an effort to get business men to realize as much as anyone else the value of farmers' organizations, believing that business cannot be stable and prosperous unless the farm is restored to its proper place in the whole commercial scheme. The whole farm problem he regards as one which can be solved through intensive study and action from the broadest possible viewpoint.

Mr. Lowden spent the afternoon conserving his energies for his speech tonight, which is the only one he will deliver in North Dakota. From here he goes to Billings, Montana, Spokane, Salt Lake City, and thence into Colorado and New Mexico.

With him is Thomas D. Knight and John P. Tracy. Mr. Knight addressed a group of women at the Grand Pacific Hotel this afternoon.

WOMAN DEAD BUT HER FACE HOLDS COLOR

Paris, Oct. 21.—A peculiar pathological case was reported from Lille. A surgeon had placed young Madame Marquette, wife of a wealthy cloth manufacturer, under chloroform, preparatory to an operation when he discovered that her heart had ceased to beat. He declared her dead and all preparations were made for the interment when a member of the family remarked that the usual signs were lacking, the face retaining its color and the limbs lacking the rigor of death.

Other persons were called but none was able to say for a certainty whether the young woman was dead or merely in a trance. An eminent Paris specialist has been summoned.

Norfolk, Oct. 21.—Five dead, three in a critical condition and 12 or 14 others more or less seriously injured comprised the casualty list early today resulting from an unexplained explosion yesterday in the forward gun mount of the new scout cruiser Trenton.

The ship was engaged in target practice on the southern drill grounds off Cape Henry when the accident occurred and was rushed immediately to Hampton Roads. Eight of the most severely burned were transferred to the Naval hospital at Portsmouth, where one died early today and several others were thought to have little chance to recover.

MANCHURIAN TROOPS TAKE PART OF TOWN

Occupy Southern Half of Shanhaiwan in Fight Against Chihlians

Mukden, Manchurian, Oct. 21.—(By the A. P.)—The Manchurian troops have occupied the southern half of the city of Shanhaiwan, on the Chihli-Manchurian border, the town being almost surrounded, according to reliable information received here.

Intense fighting is proceeding in Shanhaiwan, the Peking government army defending a steep hill in the northwest section of the city against repeated assaults of the Manchurians. The latter now hold the rail stations but the railways cannot be used as the government men have blocked the line by filling the cuts with huge blocks of stone.

NEW LEIPZIG PLANS FAIR

New Leipzig, N. D., Oct. 21.—The second annual Farmers Institute and Community fair will be held at New Leipzig on Oct. 22 and several hundred dollars have been offered as prizes in various divisions of farm produce.

REAL THANKSGIVING IN STATE IS URGED AT DICKINSON MEETING

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 21.—North Dakota was urged to hold a real Thanksgiving celebration in November at a conference here last night of western Dakota business men and farmers who met to plan for a national advertising campaign "to tell the truth about North Dakota." M. M. Goodsell, advertising manager of the Northern Pacific Railway, proposed the Thanksgiving. "Our fathers, the Pilgrims, had no greater cause to hold a first Thanksgiving Day in 1621, than North Dakota has to hold a celebration of like significance in 1924," he said. "From a valley of shadow, discouragement and national dispute, North Dakota this fall has arisen in triumph, offering to the markets of the world the biggest money-making crop ever produced in the state's history. Can anyone conceive of a greater occasion for a Thanksgiving celebration next November?"

COALITION IN GERMANY SEEN IN ELECTIONS

Organs Call For Action as Dissolution of the Reichstag Is at Hand

MANY PARTIES ACTIVE

Issues in Campaign Seen To Involve Taxation and the Dawes Plan

TO KEEP AGREEMENT

Berlin, Oct. 21.—(By the A. P.)—The dissolution of the Reichstag and the advent of a new parliament in no way endangers the fulfillment of Germany of the London agreement on the Dawes reparations plan, Chancellor Marx told the Associated Press today.

Although political complexion of the new Reichstag is wholly conjectural at this hour, the Chancellor is convinced that the election which is set for Dec. 7 will return a sufficient number of supporters for the Dawes plan and the foreign and internal policies of the present government to insure a workable coalition government.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—(By the A. P.)—

A significant political development today on the eve of the dissolution of the Reichstag was the indication of a struggle between an alliance of Dr. von Hegt's German nationalist party and foreign minister Stresemann's Peoples Party against a united front of the Socialists, Clericals and Democrats.

The press generally does not express regret over the Reichstag's dissolution, many of the newspapers rather welcoming the termination of a parliamentary situation which left the government at the mercy of inter-party bartering.

The Deutsches Allgemeine Zeitung, the Stinnes organ, and the local Anzeiger, both urged a fusion of the Nationalists and Peoples Parties because internal political developments require a united front. This is taken to indicate joint action by the two parties against the fight of the Socialists for an 8-hour day and the demand of radicals for drastic taxation on big business.

If these two parties enter the campaign with such a platform, it is considered certain that they will find themselves pitted against united opposition of Clericals, Socialists and Democrats, all of whom will take as their campaign issue continuation of the government's policy as indicated by its acceptance of the Dawes report. The Socialists also are determined to go before the voters with a demand that the government ratify the Washington 8-hour agreement. They also will impose imposition of the grain tariff.

VOTERS MAY REGISTER

Today and Week From Today Offered For This Purpose

Voters who have not registered must do so for the November election. Registration places are open in the city today, and will be open at the various voting places a week from today.

Absent voters' ballots also may be procured at the county auditor's office. Persons who expect to be absent from the city on election day, November 4, may vote by absent voter's ballot.

SAYS MEN NOT DOING DUTY

By NEA Service

Washington, Oct. 21.—Churches throughout the country are enlisting solidly in the campaign to "Get Out the Vote."

Church leaders, through the Commission of Social Service, have launched a voters' campaign aiming at 100 per cent registration and voting of all qualified citizens.

"Men are not doing their duty in voting and the worst of it is that it is the better type of citizen who is neglecting his civic duties," says Dr. Worth M. Tupper, secretary of the Federal Council Commission.

"Unless all citizens can be aroused to the necessity of voting the country will suffer. Church leaders must utilize every possible effort to emphasize the importance of voting."

CHARGE PUPILS ARE TORTURED

Instruction in Minnesota School Said to Use Electric Chair

Barnesville, Minn., Oct. 21.—Over-enthusiasm for the experimental field of electricity has led to the arrest of Upshall, science teacher at Barnesville High School, charged with using an electric chair for punishing students in his classes.

Feeling is said to be running high in the city over the alleged method of inflicting punishment following complaints filed by Fred Tennesson, who declared that the instructor caused severe burns on the body of his 14-year-old son, Earl, through high voltage applied to the "chair" Thursday, October 16.

Upshall will be given a preliminary hearing before Judge Casper Berg in justice court at Barnesville, October 25. He is at present at liberty under $2,000 bond charged with assault in the second degree. W. George Hammett of Moorhead, Clay county attorney, has the statement of Mr. Tennesson.

Itemizing the injuries to the legs and the damage to the clothing of his son which the alleged form of punishment is alleged to have caused.

BIG BOOST IS SHOWN AS CROP SELLING OPENS

Abstract of Statements as of September 17 Shows a Big Increase

RESERVES ALSO ARE UP

All of State Banks Report Reserve Far Above the Requirements

Bank deposits are beginning to go up in North Dakota.

With the receipts from the 1924 crop only partially reflected in the abstract of statements of banks and trust companies called for by State Examiner Gilbert Semington as of September 17, 1924, the deposits in state banks show an increase of $8,130,873.77 in two and one-half months.

The reserve of the state banks also is showing an upward trend, it is increasing during the period to a point where the reserve of all the state banks is $5,466,601.48 above the required amount.

The next statement of all of the state banks, after much of the 1924 crop has moved, is expected to show a remarkable increase in bank deposits and in reserves of the banks.

Bank deposits had been dwindling in North Dakota for a long period, with many banks closing. They dropped from $91,267,855.80 on September 8, 1923, to $71,642,382.23 on June 30, 1924, but again are on the upward trend and reached a total of $74,743,226.00 on September 17.

The total reserve on September 3, 1924, was $10,366,908.18, on June 30, 1924, it was $8,292,983.32, and on September 17 it was $11,477,427.94. The total reserve required September 17, 1924, was $6,010,826.46.

The abstract also shows that banks have been able to liquidate much of their indebtedness recently, the bills payable showing a decrease of $1,097,279.31 over the previous report.

Deposits subject to check increased $3,355,313.61 in the last two and a half months, in the 512 state banks and four trust companies reporting, while time certificates of deposit showed a decrease of $571,850.44.

TROOPS AGAIN IN HERRIN AS RIOTS START

Clash Said to Have Followed Fight Between Pair Over 'Court Case'

Herrin, Ill., Oct. 21.—The state militia with fixed bayonets again patrolled the streets last night as a result of an encounter yesterday afternoon between Leonard Barrows, alleged Klansman and John W. Garavaglia, following a trial in city court here in which Garavaglia represented two girls.

The girls had been arrested for alleged remarks made against Mrs. Barrows. The two men were said to have come to blows as they descended the steps leading to the streets. Crowds gathered when word of the encounter spread and as a precautionary measure the soldiers on duty here since the last sanguinary clash between the Klan and anti-Klan forces August 30 were ordered to patrol the streets and prevent the gathering of citizens.

NEW ZEPPELIN TO BE BUILT

American Firm to Build One Twice as Large as ZR-3

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 21.—Plans to construct a Zeppelin airship of 5,000,000 cubic feet, twice as large as the ZR-3, the largest ever designed, were made public here today by Paul Litchfield, vice-president and general manager of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation. The ship will be designed especially for trans-Atlantic service, Mr. Litchfield said. "We waited only for the successful determination of the flight of the ZR-3 before deciding to proceed at once for the construction of a Zeppelin for trans-Atlantic flight," he said. "From the moment that great ship took the air at Friedrichshafen, we knew we would be safe in going ahead."

One ton of straw has been made to yield 10,000 cubic feet of gas.

IN TARGET SHOOTING

Ship Was Engaged on the Southern Drill Grounds Off Cape Henry

Norfolk, Oct. 21.—Five dead, three in a critical condition and 12 or 14 others more or less seriously injured comprised the casualty list early today resulting from an unexplained explosion yesterday in the forward twin gun mount of the new scout cruiser Trenton.

The ship was engaged in target practice on the southern drill grounds off Cape Henry when the accident occurred and was rushed immediately to Hampton Roads. Eight of the most severely burned were transferred to the Naval hospital at Portsmouth, where one died early today and several others were thought to have little chance to recover.

MANCHURIAN TROOPS TAKE PART OF TOWN

Occupy Southern Half of Shanhaikwan in Fight Against Chihlians

Mukden, Manchuria, Oct. 21.—(By the A. P.)—The Manchurian troops have occupied the southern half of the city of Shanhaikwan, on the Chihli-Manchuria border, the town being almost surrounded, according to reliable information received here.

Intense fighting is proceeding in Shanhaikwan, the Peking government army defending a steep hill in the northwest section of the city against repeated assaults of the Manchurians. The latter now hold the railway stations but the railways cannot be used as the government men have blocked the lines by filling the cuts with huge blocks of stone.

NEW LEIPZIG PLANS FAIR

New Leipzig, N. D., Oct. 21.—The second annual Farmers Institute and Community fair will be held at New Leipzig on Oct. 22 and several hundred farmers have been offered as prizes in various divisions of farm produce.

REAL THANKSGIVING IN STATE IS URGED AT DICKINSON MEETING

Dickinson, N. D., Oct. 21.—North Dakota was urged to hold a real Thanksgiving celebration in November at a conference here last night of western Dakota business men and farmers who met to plan for a national advertising campaign "to tell the truth about North Dakota." M. M. Goodsell, advertising manager of the Northern Pacific Railway, proposed the Thanksgiving. "Our fathers, the Pilgrims, had no greater cause to hold a first Thanksgiving Day in 1621, than North Dakota has to hold a celebration of like significance in 1924," he said. "From a valley of shadow, discouragement and national dispute, North Dakota this fall has arisen in triumph, offering to the markets of the world the biggest money-making crop ever produced in the state's history. Can anyone conceive of a greater occasion for a Thanksgiving celebration next November?"

COALITION IN GERMANY SEEN IN ELECTIONS

Organs Call For Action as Dissolution of the Reichstag Is at Hand

MANY PARTIES ACTIVE

Issues in Campaign Seen To Involve Taxation and the Dawes Plan

TO KEEP AGREEMENT

Berlin, Oct. 21.—(By the P. P.)—The dissolution of the Reichstag and the advent of a new parliament in no way endangers the fulfillment of Germany of the London agreement on the Dawes reparations plan, Chancellor Marx told the Associated Press today.

Although political complexion of the new Reichstag is wholly conjectural at this hour, the Chancellor is convinced that the election which is set for Dec. 7 will return a sufficient number of supporters for the Dawes plan and the foreign and internal policies of the present government to insure a workable coalition government.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—(By the A. P.)—A significant political development today on the eve of the dissolution of the Reichstag was the indication of a struggle between an alliance of Dr. von Hegt's German nationalist party and foreign minister Stresemann's Peoples Party against a united front of the Socialists, Clericals and Democrats.

The press generally does not express regret over the Reichstag's dissolution, many of the newspapers rather welcoming the termination of a parliamentary situation which left the government at the mercy of inter-party bickering.

The Deutsches Allgemeine Zeitung, the Stinnes organ, and the local Anzeiger, both urged a fusion of the Nationalists and Peoples Parties because internal political developments require a united front. This is taken to indicate joint action by the two parties against the fight of the socialists for an 8-hour day and the demand of radicals for drastic taxation on big business.

If these two parties enter the campaign with such a platform, it is considered certain that they will find themselves pitted against the opposition of Clericals, Socialists and Democrats, all of whom will take as their campaign issue continuation of the government's policy as indicated by its acceptance of the Dawes plan. The Socialists also are determined to go before the voters with a demand that the government ratify the Washington 8-hour agreement. They also will impose imposition of the grain tariff.

VOTERS MAY REGISTER

Today and Week From Today Offered For This Purpose

Voters who have not registered must do so for the November election. Registration places are open in the city today, and will be open at the various voting places a week from today.

Absent voters' ballots also may be procured at the county auditor's office. Persons who expect to be absent from the city on election day, November 4, may vote by absent voters' ballot.

SAYS MEN NOT DOING DUTY

By NEA Service

Washington, Oct. 21.—Churches throughout the country are enlisting solidly in the campaign to "Get Out the Vote."

Church leaders, through the Commission of Social Service, have launched a voters' campaign aiming at 100 per cent registration and voting of all qualified citizens.

"Men are not doing their duty in voting and the worst of it is that it is the better type of citizen who is neglecting his civic duties," says Dr. Worth M. Tippy, secretary of the Federal Council Commission.

"Unless all citizens can be aroused to the necessity of voting the country will suffer. Church leaders must utilize every possible effort to emphasize the importance of voting."

CHARGE PUPILS ARE TORTURED

School Said to Use Electric Chair

Barnesville, Minn., Oct. 21.—Over-enthusiasm for the experimental field of electricity has led to the arrest of Uphal, science teacher at Barnesville High School, charged with using an electric chair for punishing students in his classes.

Feeling is said to be running high in the city over the alleged method of inflicting punishment following complaints filed by Fred Tenneson, who declared that the instructor caused severe burns on the body of his 14-year-old son, Earl, through high voltage applied to the "chair" Thursday, October 16.

Uphal will be given a preliminary hearing before Judge Casper Berg in justice court at Barnesville, October 25. He is at present at liberty under $2,000 bond charged with assault in the second degree. W. George Hammett of Moorhead, Clay county attorney, has the statement of Mr. Tenneson, itemizing the injuries to the legs of the boy, and the clothing of his son which the alleged form of punishment is alleged to have caused.

BIG BOOST IS SHOWN AS CROP SELLING OPENS

Abstract of Statements as of September 17 Shows a Big Increase

RESERVES ALSO ARE UP

All of State Banks Report Reserve Far Above the Requirements

Bank deposits are beginning to go up in North Dakota.

With the receipts from the 1924 crop only partially reflected in the abstract of statements of banks and trust companies called for by State Examiner Gilbert Semington as of September 17, 1924, the deposits in state banks show an increase of $3,130,873.77 in two and one-half months.

The reserve of the state banks also is showing an upward trend, increasing during the period to a point where the reserve of all the state banks is $5,466,601.48 above the required amount.

The next statement of all of the state banks, after much of the 1924 crop has moved, is expected to show a remarkable increase in bank deposits and in reserves of the banks.

Bank deposits had been dwindling in North Dakota for a long period, with many banks closing. They dropped from $191,267,825.80 on September 8, 1923, to $71,642,352.23 on June 30, 1924, but again are on the upward trend and reached a total of $74,763,226.00 on September 17.

The total reserve on September 8, 1923, was $10,356,909.18, on June 30, 1924, it was $8,292,983.32, and on September 17 it was $11,477,427.94. The total reserve required September 17, 1924, was $6,010,826.46.

The abstract also shows that banks have been able to liquidate much of their indebtedness recently, the bills payable showing a decrease of $1,097,279.31 over the previous report.

Deposits subject to check increased $3,355,313.63 in the last two and a half months, in the 512 state banks and four trust companies reporting, while time certificates of deposit showed a decrease of $571,850.44.

TROOPS AGAIN IN HERRIN AS RIOTS START

Clash Said to Have Followed Fight Between Pair Over Court Case

Herrin, Ill., Oct. 21.—The state militia with fixed bayonets again patrolled the streets last night as a result of an encounter yesterday afternoon between Leonard Barrows, alleged Klansman and John W. Garavaglia, following a trial in city court here in which Garavaglia represented two girls.

The girls had been arrested for alleged remarks made against Mrs. Barrows. The two men were said to have come to blows as they descended the steps leading to the streets. Crowds gathered when word of the encounter spread and as a precautionary measure the soldiers on duty here since the last sanguinary clash between the Klan and anti-Klan forces August 30 were ordered to patrol the streets and prevent the gathering of citizens.

NEW ZEPPELIN TO BE BUILT

American Firm to Build One Twice as Large as ZR-3

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 21.—Plans to construct a Zeppelin airship of 5,000,000 cubic feet, twice as large as the ZR-3, the largest ever designed, were made public here today by Paul Litchfield, vice-president and general manager of the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation. The ship will be designed especially for trans-Atlantic service, Mr. Litchfield said.

"We waited only for the successful determination of the flight of the ZR-3 before deciding to proceed at once for the construction of a Zeppelin for trans-Atlantic flight," he said. "From the moment that great ship took the air at Friedrichshafen, we knew we would be safe in going ahead."

One ton of straw has been made to yield 10,000 cubic feet of gas.

EXPORT BUYING HELD CAUSE OF RISE IN GRAIN

Brisk Buying During Past Week Carried Market to
New High Levels

MILL DEMAND FAIR

U. S. Flour Mills Well Filled
Up With Wheat—Wheat
Hurts Corn Price

Washington, Oct. 20.—Renewed export buying of both wheat and corn advanced prices to new high levels during the week ending Oct. 18th, according to the weekly market review of the United States Department of Agriculture. Countered by favorable weather for maturing the corn crop and lower prices for hogs and cattle had a weakening effect on the corn market, and prices declined 1 to 3¢ per bushel. Oats were also lower but the market was relatively firmer than for corn.

While the export sales of wheat became very heavy again during the week the buying was shifted more to the hard winter wheat for Gulf shipment. Premiums for deferred shipment were materially higher, 14¢ over the Dec. price for a vessel at the Gulf being offered for wheat for March shipment. The even Chicago Dec was offered for February shipment and 12¢ over for January, while bids for November and December shipment were 10 to 12¢ over. Practically all hard winter wheat offered with forward buying being full ports was being shipped direct to export and only the high protein milling grades were moving to Kansas City and other distributing markets.

Milling Demand Fair

The milling demand was of only fair volume as most mills are well stocked with wheat, and the flour demand continues sluggish. The heavy movement of spring wheat has practically eliminated the demand from the spring wheat mills for hard winter wheat. The export demand for the spring wheat markets was less active than in the winter wheat markets, due partially to the undesirable quality of a large percentage of the spring receipts. The arrivals of spring wheat at both Minneapolis and Winnipeg show the effect of dump harvest, and more than one-third of the Canadian receipts were reported to be grading No. 3 or lower. Good dry wheat was in excellent demand from both mills and shippers at Minneapolis, and premiums held around 20 to 22¢ over the Dec. for the best quality of No. 1 dark northern spring wheat.

Red winter wheat prices continued very firm and at a premium of about 10¢ per bushel over the hard winter wheat. New high prices for the crop year were reached at Minneapolis and other winter wheat markets.

Export buying, particularly by Norway and Germany, was renewed for rye, and prices advanced 6 to 7¢ during the week. European requirements are much larger than last year because of much smaller production in the principal producing countries, and this is causing an urgent export demand for all offerings of rye from this country. Exports to date are larger than total exports for last year.

Corn Weakens

Continued favorable weather for the maturing of the crop, together with the approach of the new crop movement, had a decidedly weakening influence on the corn market. Lower cattle and hog prices were also a weakening factor and prices declined 4 to 5¢. New corn is being marketed in increasing quantities in Texas and Oklahoma. Fort Worth receipts of Oklahoma corn are reported being sold to exporters for shipment to Europe. The first car of new corn was received at Kansas City and Indianapolis during the week, but no movement of volume is expected for about 30 days. The movement of old corn continues of good volume, and stocks in the principal markets continue to increase totaling now close to $8,000,000 bushels compared with only about 1,000,000 bushels at the corresponding time last year. The cash demand is only of fair volume as feeders are substituting oats and other cheaper grains.

Flax Upward

The flax market continued its upward trend as receipts continued light. There was no material increase in receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth, and the Canadian movement has been very slow in getting under way. Eastern crushers were active buyers of flaxseed on the Northwestern markets in an effort to obtain their supply before the close of Lake navigation. No. 1 seed at Minneapolis sold at 2 to 3 cents over the December future price, which advanced 6 cents during the week and closed on Friday at $24.60.

15,000,000 Ballots Sent By Mail As Literary Digest Takes National Vote

WHO will be the next president? is the question every politician, political writer, and doer is trying to answer, and The Literary Digest is sending a king's ransom in the way of the greatest statistical feat to solve this presidential riddle by a nation-wide vote.

The Digest is asking 15,000,000 people in every section of the country to signify their choice of the eight presidential candidates in advance of the regular election. This gigantic list is more than half the number of all the people who voted for president in 1920 and more than twice the number who paid income taxes last year.

The list itself is a wonder. It is an accumulation, which they have been compiling for over thirty years and has been revised for changes every two months during the extensive period. It is reputed to contain names of persons engaged in every conceivable occupation from workers in every branch of industry, both union and non-union to artists and professional men and women of all grades. Every village and town in the country is said to have a representative in the list.

To accomplish this herculean task, in the brief time between the national conventions and the regular election, fifteen hundred addressers were engaged, for every ballot is mailed in an envelope, personally addressed with name and street number postage prepaid, and is delivered through the U. S. Post Office to the voter addressed. The addresses average over one million envelopes a day.

Next the envelopes are sent to the mailing rooms. There a hundred stacks of ballots reach the ceiling. A steady stream of trucks constantly arrives with envelopes and instructions. And twenty automatic stamping machines stamp the quantity. These are Uncle Sam's cash registers. Every hour of the day they ring up over two million pennies.

Above all the noise there is the feminine babel of over five hundred young women who are assembling the 45,000,000 pieces of printed matter—15,000,000 ballots and 15,000,000 instructions which are inserted into the 15,000,000 addressed envelopes. These young women do their work with lightning speed as over 1,000,000 individual ballots go through the government cancelling machines every eight hours.

To handle this huge amount of mail a postal sub-station is established in the mailing room and thirty-five official government clerks sort the letters and send them directly to the trains. Fifty letters are employed to count and tally the incoming votes, and, though the poll of The Digest is unofficial, it has been surrounded with official safeguards. The ballots are printed on a special card-board which has a colored base. There are only four presses in the country capable of doing this particular work and every pound of paper thus prepared is accounted for while The Digest poll is in the making.

The votes are sorted and tallied to show the probable electoral college. Besides a 1924 choice each voter is asked to designate which party he voted for in 1920. These returns show the shifting of the vote, and are said to make possible the most comprehensive analysis ever attempted officially or unofficially.

The returns of The Digest's poll will be announced on October 31st, and the editors believe their results will be substantiated the following Tuesday.

TEXAS COURT REMOVES LAST BAR TO WOMEN

Quality of Sex in Holding Offices Is Seen in Supreme Court Decision

LENGTHY OPINION

Court Discusses Various Angles of Case—Victory For Women Is Seen

Austin, Texas, Oct. 20.—The last vestige of the ancient bar against women in office was swept away by the Texas Supreme court in holding Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson of Temple, and all other women in the state, eligible to elective positions.

While holding that Mrs. Ferguson is qualified to vote, the court also held unconstitutional that part of the statute which seeks to confer on a private citizen the right to bring suit testing the qualifications of a candidate for governor. This right belongs to the Legislature, the court said.

The plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson of San Antonio, has 15 days in which to file a motion for rehearing and it was stated the case will not be sent back to the court of civil appeals for issuance of the decree until expiration of that time. It would then be too late for any action, as all ballots would have been printed.

Calls Suit Unconstitutional
In a 33-page opinion, written by Associate Justice Thomas B. Greenwood and concurred in by Chief Justice Cullen and Associate Justice Pierson, the court held that: Charles M. Dickson, plaintiff, had no legal authority to bring the suit, since the law under which the case was brought is clearly unconstitutional.

That the Fifty-third district court, Judge George C. Calhoun, did not have jurisdiction to hear the case, thus overruling Judge Calhoun on these jurisdictional points.

That Mrs. Ferguson is not disqualified, either by her sex, by her married status, or by the fact that she is the wife of James E. Ferguson, who has been declared by the state Senate to be ineligible henceforth to hold office in Texas.

Called Victory for Women
The decision is regarded as a complete and final victory, not only for Mrs. Ferguson, but for women throughout the land, as it was one of the first cases to directly test the effect of the suffrage amendments.

The suffrage amendments to the federal Constitution and the state Constitution were interpreted as giving women not only the right to vote, but also the right to hold office. To hold to the contrary would be to create a rule out of accord with the customs of the time and the morals of the people, the court held.

The statute under which Dickson brought his suit is an amendment to a previous statute attempting to define those eligible to office in Texas.

"Insofar as this act related to officers such as the governor, whose qualifications had been particularly and carefully and differently enumerated in the Constitution, it cannot be doubted that it was utterly void," said the opinion.

Legislature Determines Matter
The matter is for determination by the legislature, said the court, continuing:

"No one can be inducted in the office of governor without a legislative determination of his election. Not only must the legislature determine that he received the highest number of votes, but Section 3 of Article IV, of the Constitution requires a legislative adjudication of his constitutional eligibility. Should the election be contested on the ground of lack of constitutional eligibility or on any other ground, such contests may be determined only by both houses of the legislature in joint session."

In reference to the eligibility of women to hold office, the court said: "Where the competency of women to hold office in Texas is challenged the fundamental inquiry is as to the extent of restrictions on the people in their sovereign capacity with respect to freedom of choice of their public servants. No further authority need be cited to demonstrate the correctness of this position than the language which this court, through its great Justice Reuben R. Gaines, quoted with approval in Stenoff against State, as follows: 'Eligibility to office is not declared as a right or principle by any express terms of the Constitution, but it results as a just deduction from the express powers and provisions of the system. The basis of the principle is the absolute liberty of the electors and the appointing authorities to choose and appoint any person who is not made ineligible by the Constitution. Eligibility to office, therefore, belongs not exclusively or specially to electors enjoying the right of suffrage. It belongs equally to all persons, whoever not excluded by the constitution.'

correctness of this position than the language which this court, through its great Justice Reuben R. Gaines, quoted with approval in Stenoff against State, as follows: 'Eligibility to office is not declared as a right or principle by any express terms of the Constitution, but it results as a just deduction from the express powers and provisions of the system. The basis of the principle is the absolute liberty of the electors and the appointing authorities to choose and appoint any person who is not made ineligible by the Constitution. Eligibility to office, therefore, belongs not exclusively or specially to electors enjoying the right of suffrage. It belongs equally to all persons, whoever not excluded by the constitution.'

That Mrs. Ferguson is not disqualified, either by her sex, by her married status, or by the fact that she is the wife of James E. Ferguson, who has been declared by the state Senate to be ineligible henceforth to hold office in Texas.

Called Victory for Women
The decision is regarded as a complete and final victory, not only for Mrs. Ferguson, but for women throughout the land, as it was one of the first cases to directly test the effect of the suffrage amendments.

The suffrage amendments to the federal Constitution and the state Constitution were interpreted as giving women not only the right to vote, but also the right to hold office. To hold to the contrary would be to create a rule out of accord with the customs of the time and the morals of the people, the court held.

The statute under which Dickson brought his suit is an amendment to a previous statute attempting to define those eligible to office in Texas.

"Insofar as this act related to officers such as the governor, whose qualifications had been particularly and carefully and differently enumerated in the Constitution, it cannot be doubted that it was utterly void," said the opinion.

Legislature Determines Matter
The matter is for determination by the legislature, said the court, continuing:

"No one can be inducted in the office of governor without a legislative determination of his election. Not only must the legislature determine that he received the highest number of votes, but Section 3 of Article IV, of the Constitution requires a legislative adjudication of his constitutional eligibility. Should the election be contested on the ground of lack of constitutional eligibility or on any other ground, such contests may be determined only by both houses of the legislature in joint session."

In reference to the eligibility of women to hold office, the court said: "Where the competency of women to hold office in Texas is challenged the fundamental inquiry is as to the extent of restrictions on the people in their sovereign capacity with respect to freedom of choice of their public servants. No further authority need be cited to demonstrate the

Declaring that letters already put into evidence before the Senate investigating committee "show that funds being raised in eastern states are to be used in the doubtful western territory" Mr. LaFollette declared in a statement that "all these western states have corrupt practices and should it develop that this money is being used in unlawful amount in those western states where corrupt practices exist the rights of Senators and Congressmen to their seats will be questioned in the next Congress."

Republican Women Are Completing Organization To Elect Coolidge
And Straight Ticket In November

Republican National Committee-women are preparing to wage an intensive campaign between now and the November election. With state conventions over they are getting down to business of selecting a strait Republican ticket. Prior to completing the work of organization in their states, large numbers have visited the headquarters of the Republican National Committee, Chicago,
to confer with Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, leader.

All agree that Coolidge makes a strong appeal to women. They say women appreciate the high principles for which he stands.
They feel that his character and spiritual quality are leadership. Women

They look upon keeping on a par.

Pictured above are Republican National Committee women at Campaign Headquarters, Chicago,
to confer with Mrs. Alvin T. Hert,
leader: Miss Bina West, Michigan;
Mrs. Edgar D. Penney, Nebraska;
Mrs. Paul Bowman, South Dakota;
Mrs. John Gordon, Battelle, Ohio.

In many of the states in the Middle West, women leaders report that it is the woman on the farm who will elect Coolidge. Mrs.
Paul Bowman, Republican leader in South Dakota, says that women are constructive in their thinking and will listen to reason. "If we can cover the state and make a personal appeal to farm women, we will have nothing to worry about in South Dakota," reports
Mrs. Bowman.

In discussing the outlook in Nebraska, Mrs. Penney said:
"Women think first of their homes and the needs of their families and they know that when the country

HUNT GETTING READY FOR LONG VAUDEVILLE SHOW

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

Washington, Oct. 21.—For the hu-morously inclined, there is a vast range of possibilities in the situations that will inevitably arise as a result of the approaching election.

No matter who is elected—Coolidge and Dawes, Davis and Bryan, or LaFollette and Wheeler—the United States Senate is certain to be the setting of some situations that for sheer humor will outstrip the wildest imaginings of the burlesque librettist or the comic supplement artist.

For those who do not take their politics and their congressmen and senators too seriously, Washington during the next Congress will be better than a sideshow.

Consider the situation in the Senate should the Coolidge-Dawes ticket come through a winner.

Dawes becomes vice president. His sole duty is to preside over the Senate; to decide points of order in accordance with the rules and precedents and to be an impartial arbiter in the matter of procedure. He has no vote, except in case of a tie, and no voice in debate.

Down on the floor, on the Republican side of the aisle, will sit Senator
Brookhart of Iowa, who fought Dawes as the candidate of his own party and demanded that he be removed from the G. O. P. ticket.

Will Dawes recognize Brookhart when the Iowa senator arises to make some remarks? If he does, or if he doesn't, interesting and explosive things may happen. Match and powder keg will be in juxtaposition. The possibility of a blowup will be ever present.

Consider, too, the dramatic possibilities underlying an average speech of Curaway of Arkansas, Curaway is the Democrats' most expert skinner, and he specializes in taking the hide of the G. O. P. elephant.

Students of the effect of mind over matter will crowd the Senate galleries to watch the physical and emotional reaction on Dawes as Curaway slips his knife through the Republican article and proceeds to expose the carcass beneath. Curaway carves with a careless hand which

MASONS HEAR PLEA HERE FOR CONSTITUTION

Grand Master Henry and W.
J. Hutcheson Ask Study of Fundamental Law

TO CONDUCT SCHOOLS

A plan made that every citizen vote, that every citizen seek to understand the fundamental law of the land was made last night by Theodore
S. Henry of Valley City, grand master of the Masonic lodge of North Dakota, and by W. J. Hutcheson, lecturer for the Masonic Service Association at a district convention of Masons held at the local temple. Visitors from several lodges were present at the dinner served in the Masonic Temple at 6:30 o'clock. L. K. Thompson, district deputy, presided.

The American Constitution, Mr.
Hutcheson said, was a product of evolution and the best minds of the country at the time of its adoption, with divine guidance.

"The Constitution," he said, "is an expression of the will of the people insisting on rights of the individual as against the will of a monarch."

Certain, stable rules and principles of government, designed for permanent, were laid down in the American constitution, adopted after long study and debate, he said. The American constitution, which has been called the most wonderful document of its kind, was all the more rememberable when one considers the situation at the time of its adoption, he said. Lawlessness and indecision was prevalent, and in the convention there was conflict between the federalists on the one side, who would make the federal government su-address this newcomer from Nebraska: "If the president please."

There, indeed, would be a real drama of soul, or melodrama.

In either case, whether Bryan or Dawes presides in the Sixty-ninth Senate, there will be on the floor a thorn in the side of either or both parties as the situation may decree,
LaFollette and Wheeler.

They will be there as senators unless one of them is there as the presiding officer, while the other sits at the White House.

Suspense? Human interest?
Drama?

That's what Washington is going to be full of nothing else but, as Tom Helling would say.

port and those on the other insisting on the right of the states.
The result, he said, the conflict between plans for the tyranny of a monarch and those urging moderacy.

One of all the discussion and study since the American constitution providing for three coordinate branches of government, legislative, executive and judicial, he said.

In closing, Mr. Hutcheson told of the efforts of the Masonic grand lodges officers to get out the vote at the coming election.

Mr. Henry, in brief remarks, explained the program of the grand lodge.

Study of the Constitution is to be undertaken in the Masonic lodge, he said. A series of addresses will be given during the winter.

Many people do not appreciate citizenship, Mr. Henry said, and not enough understand the fundamental law.

He told Masons they could be second citizens in peace time as in wartime, and urged upon all acceptance of the benefits of the Masonic fall and winter program, the study of the Constitution and the government.

Following the banquet there was work in the lodge room. It was announced Bismarck Masons would go to Washburn, October 27, to give the degree work there.

ATWOOD TALKS AT LUNCHEON

President of Constitution League Speaks Here

Harry Atwood, president of the Constitutional League of America, delivered an address upon the constitution at the Grand Pacific hotel this noon before members of the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions club and club women of the city. He made a vigorous plea against the tendencies of the time and attacked the advisability of the so-called modern ideas as expressed in the initiative, referendum and recall. He declared these instruments of democracy were not new but as old as the hills and had been tried and found wanting. "It is no question," he said, "of growing away from the constitution but rather growing into it."

Government ownership and most of the schemes of socialism he declared had been tried and failed in America years before the constitution was written. He sketched historical circumstances leading up to the adoption of the constitution quoting at length from the letters of Washington. "The period leading up to the adoption of the constitution," he said, "was as dark and as gloomy from a governmental standpoint as is Russia today."

Touching upon the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the constitution in Philadelphia, he declared that tendencies in government since then would indicate that we had "hidden the constitution goodby."

He scored democracy as a system of government, declaring that any nation which has ever tried to apply that principle of government had suffered paralysis. He urged a return to the fundamentals of the constitution and he declared that it was the one great asset of the country and the fact that it was the organic law of the nation split opportunity for millions.

Mr. Atwood is the author of a number of books upon the constitution, an outstanding authority upon modern government and a foe of socialist tendencies and all attacks of the so-called modernists upon the constitution. He attacked the involved ballots, the circulating of endless petitions and referring intricate matters of legislation to popular referendum. He asked his hearers how long baseball would last in America if the bleachers packed the team by a popular referendum and the umpire's decisions could be repealed by petition of the spectators.

The speaker is in the state addressing the several teachers institutes and left here for Minot.

PARTY THAT GETS "SILENT VOTE" WILL WIN ELECTION

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer
Washington, Oct. 20.—Will "Silent Cal" get the "silent vote"? If he does, then Davis and La Follette may as well wave the formality of counting the ballot and concede the election of the G. O. P. ticket. For it is the "silent vote," the men and women who take no active part in the rallies, demonstrations and general hubbub of a campaign, who listen and think but do not vote, who sleep on their tongues over the claims of their campaigner, who really decide who is to be the day after election.

This vote, the usual "silent" vote is expected to be controlled by some million of non-voters stay-at-home voters. Not partisan civic and patriotic organizations, as well as all the party outfits, are uniting in a drive to get to the poll at least 75 per cent of the eligible voters.

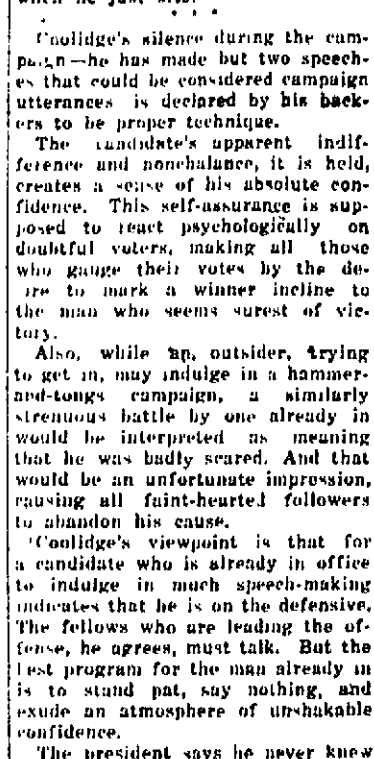

What this may mean in the way of changed results can be sensed when it is known that if 75 per cent of the folks who are entitled to vote Nov. 4 cast their votes the total will be more than 50 per cent above the total vote in the 1920 presidential election. In that year only a fraction more than 49 per cent of eligible voters were cast.

Just what is it that appeals most to this "silent vote" on the part of the candidates? How should one go about catching it?

Probably there isn't any formula. But in the main it is held that the large part of this vote is the thinking as well as the silent vote. The man who doesn't say much is apt to do a good bit of thinking. He thinks things out in his own mind rather than arguing them out with another.

Sometimes, of course, he may be simple and silent instead of simply silent, just as it is suggested by his title that while Coolidge some-

Glenn Hunter Comes to Bismarck In Comedy, "Merton of the Movies"

Merton Gill, played by Glenn Hunter and Jeff Baird, played by John Webster, in the comedy, "Merton of the Movies." Baird offers Gill $400 a week to go into a snap-tick photograph, which he turns down with scorn, although he is dead broke.

Merton Gill, of Simsbury, Illinois, will touch this city next Monday and on October 27 he will be seen on the stage of the Auditorium.

This hero of that famous story, "Merton of the Movies," is, on the stage, impersonated by Glenn Hunter, one of the most brilliant of the younger school of actors, and who is now the star of the organization presenting the comedy. It is nearly two years since Mr. Hunter created the character of Merton Gill, and during that time it has stood forth as one of the most artistic and effective comedy roles seen on the metropolitan stage in recent years.

This achievement was due to Mr. Hunter's unusual talent, and likewise to the fact that the characterization and the physical abilities to a nicety.

Messrs. George C. Tyler and Hugh Ford are the producers and managers of the "Merton of the Movies" organization, and recognizing Mr. Hunter's great success as Merton Gill, they are bringing him out this season as a full-fledged star, and our theatregoers will have the honor of witnessing this clever actor in that capacity.

EIGHT KILLED DURING STORM

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 21.—Reports that from eight to 13 persons had been killed and about 50 injured when a tropical storm struck the town of Arroyos de Mantua, in Pinar del Rio were received here today. Almost every building in the town suffered heavy damage and it was estimated that the tobacco crop suffered severely. Communication by wire was almost paralyzed.

Arco, Minn.—"I went to Camp Dodge for training and to serve Uncle Sam in time of the World War. I had not been feeling very good for several years previous. I had always from childhood been troubled with constipation and it occurred the same way after I entered service. I felt poorly for two months after entering camp, so I ordered some of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and I wish to state that by using these Pellets in the proper way I was never disabled from service through sickness. If any one desires further information regarding Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, I will be more than glad to give desired information." Harry N. Hansen.

times sits and thinks there are times when he just sits!

Coolidge's silence during the campaign—he has made but two speeches that could be considered campaign utterances—is declared by his backers to be proper technique.

The candidate's apparent indifference and nonchalance, it is held, creates a sense of his absolute confidence. This self-assurance is supposed to react psychologically on doubtful voters, making all those who gauge their votes by the desire to mark a winner incline to the man who seems surest of victory.

Also, while up, outsider, trying to get in, may indulge in a hammer-and-tongs campaign, a similarly strenuous battle by one already in would be interpreted as meaning that he was badly scared. And that would be an unfortunate impression, causing all faint-hearted followers to abandon his cause.

Coolidge's viewpoint is that for a candidate who is already in office to indulge in much speech-making indicates that he is on the defensive. The fellows who are leading the offense, he agrees, must talk. But the best program for the man already in is to stand pat, say nothing, and exude an atmosphere of unshakable confidence.

The president says he never knew a candidate to lose anything by talking too little, so he's striving to talk even less than usual.

After his demand that Charley Dawes be ousted as vice presidential candidate of the Republican party, G. O. P. leaders are more than ever certain that Senator Brookhart's parents were clairvoyant when they named him Smith WILDMAN Brookhart. Because of Brookhart and his challenge there are now a lot of wild men around Coolidge-Dawes headquarters.

After all, the enthusiasm on tap in a presidential campaign is pretty much of a manufactured article. Official as well as civil Washington has been a lot more "hot up" over the world's series than it will be over any possible result of the November elections.

DEADLOCK WILL NOT NECESSARILY MEAN C. W. BRYAN'S ELECTION

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Washington, Oct. 20. Politicians who consider Charles W. Bryan too radical to be safe have been crying out for some time that a deadlocked electoral college the first of the year would amount practically to Bryan for president.

It doesn't necessarily follow, however. It only follows, if it follows at all, in case the Progressives are the takers in the election in November.

And they may not be. If the Republicans lead and the Progressives make the second best showing, which is possible, then an electoral college deadlock means Charles C. Dawes for president just as naturally as the other lineup means Bryan.

Just Suppose: Politicians who consider Dawes too conservative to be safe just as the conservatives consider Bryan too radical don't seem to have thought of this. At any rate, they haven't emitted any loud cries about it, as the others have.

Compare the two cases. Say the electoral college does deadlock with Coolidge and Dawes receiving a plurality of the votes, Davis and Bryan second on the list.

Then suppose the House of Representatives, charged with the task of picking the president in case the electoral college can't do it, also deadlocks, as probably it would.

In such a situation the Senate really would make the presidential choice, for the Senate elects the vice president if the college cannot, and if the House couldn't elect a presidential selection would become presidential.

But while the House is authorized by the constitution to vote on three presidential candidates, the Senate votes on but two candidates for the vice presidency.

Bryan. That the senatorial voting would be limited to Dawes and Bryan.

In a case like that it's not straining matters to assume that the Progressive senators, deeming Bryan preferable to the unquestionably conservative Dawes, would throw their strength to Bryan. And, of course, the Democrats would vote for him.

Between Democrats and Progressives hold a majority and would become vice president, and immediately afterward president.

But suppose, with Coolidge and Dawes leading in the electoral college, La Follette and Wheeler came second and Davis and Bryan third.

Then, if both the college and the House deadlocked, the Senate would have to choose between Dawes and Wheeler.

Naturally Dawes would get the Republican support. And does anybody think there aren't enough conservative Democratic senators who would throw their votes to him to give him a majority?

Anybody who does imagine such a thing doesn't know much about the Senate of the United States.

Every so often something turns up in the news to prove that people still exist who bank their savings in the old sock, the tin can under the rose bush, or the innards of a condemned clock in the attic.

It seems unbelievable!

A bank gives you something for the use of your money. The tin can in the garden doesn't. Neither does the old sock nor the clock.

GETTING OUT THE VOTE

No more important work lies ahead of the various political groups than that of getting the vote out. Burleigh county should participate in the nation-wide movement to see that there is a great popular expression at the polls—in other words that at least a majority of persons entitled to vote cast their ballots, Tuesday, November 4.

Comparison of figures through the years shows a lack of interest in voting. New voters who are about to cast their first vote, do not feel the privilege as keenly as did their fathers a generation ago. It is the duty of the men and women who have had the right of franchise for some time to inspire and educate the voter who will cast his or her first presidential ballot within the next two weeks.

There is nothing partisan in the efforts to get out the vote. Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and other organizations comprised of alert and zealous citizens are putting forth an extra effort to overcome the lethargy toward voting. It is a solemn duty, this act of voting, and not to be discharged lightly and without thought and application. Bound up in the election results may be your personal welfare—the happiness and security of your family and your property.

Vote as you please but by all means vote.

KEEPING UP THE RECORD

Bismarck High School is to be congratulated on the showing made by its two publications—"Pep" and "Prairie Breezes"—at the annual judging of the Northern Inter-Scholastic Press Association. Again the two publications were placed at the top, for schools of the size of Bismarck. They were judged second only to the publications of a Minneapolis High School, where resources are much greater. The students in charge of the High School publications are keeping up the fine record made in these contests in the past and maintaining the standard of their publications.

A VALUABLE ASSET

Bismarck's two hospitals again are approved by the examining committee of the American College of Surgeons as hospitals of the highest standards. It is significant that out of five hospitals of 100 beds or more in North Dakota meeting these requirements Bismarck has two. While the percentage of approved hospitals for North Dakota as a whole is 58.3 per cent, the Bismarck record is 100 per cent. Both of Bismarck's hospitals perform a valuable mission for the people of a large section of North Dakota, and should be appreciated.

AFTERMATH OF VISIT

"Prince of Wales is being presented with a book of newspaper clippings consisting of 61,120 references to his visit to Long Island and weighing 325 pounds. If some thoughtful person will now present his royal highness with a copy of the New York telephone directory, he will have enough light literature to last the winter."

The foregoing is quoted from the Toronto Evening Telegram, in the prince's own empire. Anyone who believes that a keen sense of humor is lacking among the English and their Dominion cousins certainly has another guess coming.

CHICKEN WITH EIGHT HEARTS

A chicken with eight hearts, killed by Mrs. C. D. Evans, is reported from Evening Shade, Ark. That excites curiosity. But the real marvel goes unnoticed. It is that billions of other chickens have only one heart. Nature standardizes. She produces exceptions rarely. And when an exception does slip through, especially in the form of high intelligence, nature usually destroys her "blunder" quickly.

A super-brain is generally handicapped by a sickly body. The great Darwin wrote most of his stuff in bed. He had to—an invalid suffering tortures.

ELECTION COSTS

The election in England costs London's business alone 500 million dollars. This is the estimate by a leading Lombard street banker. He's figuring the cost of disruption of trade by political uncertainty.

If we calculated the cost of our national elections on that basis, instead of by contributions to campaign chests, the figure would give an adding machine a headache. But it's cheap at any price, this periodical focusing of public attention on the serious issues that really count.

BLINDNESS

Nearly 5000 American men, women and children have been blinded in the last 12 months. Eighty-five per cent were men and boys—naturally, being more reckless.

Industrial accidents stand at the top of the list. There's still a lot of room for more safeguarding devices, especially around machinery. Individual personal caution is the greatest protection, after all's said and done. This is proved by the fact that in dynamite-making, an extremely hazardous occupation, there are few accidents. Extreme danger compels constant caution.

A "RICH" QUARRY!

Now that Richard Blakeborough is dead, his friends in England are gathering together his writings, of which he left more than a ton of manuscript. He jotted down everything from poems, folk-tales, odd customs, old songs, to observations of what he had seen and heard during the day.

An entire ton! It would be a rich quarry for those congressmen whose chief occupation is oratory and whose chief product is words.

An exchange says William G. McAdoo would make good on the stage. The exchange just possibly has in mind, something on the order of "lost in New York."

GOOD ADVICE

(Springfield Daily News)
Aliens who come to the United States expecting to make this country their future home, were advised the other day by a justice of the supreme court of the state of New York, to forget their native political sentiments when they arrive on American soil. This is good advice and also timely.

One of the prevailing troubles that our Americanization authorities and agencies encounter in their work of popularizing the democracy of the United States is that of overcoming prejudices and political differences of opinion which possess so many of the foreign born who come to our shores. It ought to be plainly apparent, for example, to any intelligent man or woman from another country that so long as they cling to native customs and political principles, they cannot take a firm grasp upon American ideals.

In short one cannot come from Poland or Germany or Italy or any other European country and divide his affection for the new country with devotion to the old. There has been entirely too much of this sort of thing practiced among the foreign-born in America. The result has been that we have branches here of the Fascisti, the Bolsheviki and other alien political principles, and interracial controversies break out ever so often.

Somewhere it was related the other day that when Locatelli, the Italian aviator who lost his plane while accompanying the American fliers, landed in Boston, a division of opinion existed between his former fellow countrymen as to just how far they should go in honoring him. Some claimed he was a follower of Mussolini and enemies of the Italian dictator refused to engage in the welcome.

This sort of thing greatly retards the growth of Americanism of an alien-born resident here and away it is unpopular among native Americans to observe such movements fostered in our cities. All of which we should think the well-meaning foreigner would see and appreciate.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"It is too queer what became of the House That Jack Built," remarked Mister Spratt at the breakfast table.

"It certainly is," said Mrs. Spratt, helping herself to another piece of bacon.

"The queerest thing we ever heard of," said the twins pouring more molasses over their pancakes.

But Jack and Jill and Mrs. John didn't say anything. And they weren't eating much either.

Jack was thinking of all his work for nothing.

Jill was thinking of her dolls and all her play furniture and everything. And Mrs. John was thinking of her lost cook-stove and her lost sewing machine, and all her fall sewing to do, too! And her bread-pan was all set for raising!

"Well, well, well! Good-morning, everybody!" said a cheery voice.

And there stood old Daddy Gander in the doorway, his magic dust-pan under his arm.

"Hello, Daddy," said Jack Spratt. "Come on and sit down. Have you heard the news?"

"No," said Daddy Gander. "You don't mean to say that the Old Shoe Woman had been spanking her children again, do you?"

"No, worse than that," said Mrs. Spratt with her mouth full of bacon. "You don't mean that old Poppleton Bun, the miller-man, has gone to sleep and snored flour-dust all over town, do you?" said Daddy Gander.

"No, it's worse than that," cried Mrs. John. "Our house is gone! The nice little house that my son, Jack, built up on Pippin Hill!"

"Yes, sir!" said Nancy. "It's all gone. Nothing left but the cellar. Nick and I saw it just now."

"Land o' Goshen!" cried Daddy Gander. "I never heard of such a thing. And Mother Goose away, too! She might know what to do if she were at home. You don't suppose—"

"What, Daddy?" cried everybody. "You don't suppose—"

Daddy stopped again. "Oh, I just cannot say it. I don't know why I ever thought of such a thing! You don't suppose—"

"What don't we suppose, sir?" said Jack Spratt.

"You don't suppose," whispered Daddy Gander, "that Peter Peter could have taken it, do you?"

"Peter Peter?" cried Mrs. Spratt. "Why should he take it?"

"Well," said Daddy Gander with a wise wag of his head, "they say that after he got married he hadn't a cent to live on and he had to put his wife into a pumpkin shell."

"Daddy Gander, you're an old gossip," said Mrs. John. "Peter Peter didn't take our house any more than he did the moon. Why, only yesterday Mrs. Peter Peter told me how happy she was when she came to get my recipe for pumpkin-pies. Just give Peter Peter a chance. He's young yet and it isn't everybody who is as smart as my Jack and can build a house. Oh, hoo! I forgot! Our nice little house is gone and I'll never see it any more."

"Fiddlesticks!" said Daddy Gander. "We'll find it for you. My goodness! You'd think you had lost a diamond ring, or something you could hike behind a potato-skin. A house! Why, my goodness, it ought to be as easy to find as a stone-bruise! Come on, Twins. Here's my magic dust pan. Hop on and we'll

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO THE GAY LITTLE MARQUISE, CARE THE SECRET DRAWER

I wonder if you have noticed, Little Marquise, that I haven't written very often lately. It is because when I am far away from the little secret drawer which is the resting place of my communications, I always feel as though I should not write for fear those very sacred documents would fall into less sympathetic possession than yours.

However, now I am quite sure I shall soon be back in my apartment packing up to return here, and I shall put this letter in that drawer where it belongs.

The resting place is getting a little overcrowded, consequently, some of my effusions will soon have to be weeded out and placed in a safety deposit vault, to be opened only after my death or some time when I feel as you did, that all my secrets must be burned.

I have come up into the attic of my old home, Little Marquise, to be alone, and once more to get my mind arranged and my life ordered. Mother is sleeping under the care of her old maid, who has administered an opiate to her. She insisted upon sitting up all night alone with her dead. She would not let any one, not even me, stay with her.

"I will have him such a little while, Leslie," she said as she raised her face to mine with a pathetic smile. "Let me stay with him to-night. Tomorrow I shall take up my life without him, but tonight, dear child, let me have him all to myself."

I wish Little Marquise, that you had left some of those letters, in which I know your heart had spoken. I am sure that when your king died and you could not mourn him, you had to place in the secret drawer some memento of your grief. Poor little, gay Little Marquise! You had to smile outwardly when your heart was breaking; that was the great penance for your sin.

That one letter which you left to me who found it in the secret drawer of the old desk, told me much more than was written on its pages. Yours was the most sorrowful, the most tragic of partings, and some way when I saw my mother enter that silent room as though it were her own particular right, my thought went back to you, dear little Marquise, and the words that you wrote: "They tell me I am going to die, and so I am taking back my confidences and laying them one by one on the fire, for no one, not even those who love me best, may know, as these yellowing sheets of paper might tell, that the gay little Marquise was beloved by a king."

They had not known your joy, Little Marquise! They must not know your sorrow. You had to bear it alone. Under this guise, nothing is more tragic than death, when he comes to bear away the one you love.

In that great moment after my father's death when Jack took me in his arms, and I knew there was perfect sympathy between us, all thought of living my life without my husband, of not being able if I should be left as is my mother, to say: "Tonight, let me have him all to myself!" had completely gone out of my mind. Consequently, when my thoughts went back to you, and I remembered that you had had right to mourn, that you were still called "the gay little Marquise," while all the while your very soul was clamoring to be called "the sorrowful little Marquise," I knew that my place was with Jack, whatever the years might bring.

OLDEST MAN IS 163

By Albert Apple

Oldest living man in the world is the Manchurian giant, Yuan Kwo-Chang. He claims he's 163. Orientals accept him as authentic. The Chinese, in particular, believe he doesn't exaggerate his age. Marshal Chang pensions him, 200 yen a year.

And yet Yuan, living his life in a half-barbaric Mongolian district, hasn't actually "lived" as much as the average American of 30.

What counts isn't the number of birthdays, but how much happens between birthdays.

Our generation, amid scientific marvels and with the whole world literally at our door as a result of transportation magic, crams into one year as much experience, learning, sensations and impressions as our great-grandfathers got in a dozen.

In the one-minute march from death cell to electric chair, the condemned murderer lives through an eternity. In a second of sleep, you can "go through" years of life as vivid as the real thing, though it's all a dream.

Time is relative. Save $1000. With it, you can travel more than Marco Polo in his whole lifetime. Or Columbus or any of the early explorers. The main difference is that you will not have their hardships. And you will be exploring the known instead of the uncharted.

Men now in the prime of life will have a chance to live 1000 years, by approaching medical discoveries. So claimed the eminent German scientist, Professor Fritz Haber, recently. He expects the elimination of causes of natural death.

After enduring a few centuries, people would begin to curse the scientists who condemned them to the 1000 years. Life begins to get dull after the eightieth birthday or before. The average old person is quite calm as he contemplates the approaching end—more than resigned, he is willing. He has tasted life to its full extent and is ready for another world.

This earth is not interesting enough to be a permanent home, nor even for 1000 years. Life is a journey. And a gradual sameness makes any long trip tiresome toward its close. The ocean may be at its best, delightful. But passengers still thrill when they sight land—destination—nearly as much so as the early explorers.

Cap Higgins, the artist, drove in from Jersey and stabled his car in an up-town garage that overlooks the Hudson and the Jersey shore. The man who took charge of the car was about 50 and has lived in New York all his life.

Higgins made some casual remark about his ride through Jersey.

"You know, I guess Jersey's a nice place, all right," the Jersey man remarked. "I've heard a lot about it and I been intendin' to go over there some day, but I ain't just got around to it yet."

Writes he, "It is no longer a difficult task to eat spaghetti properly, for the only thing about it is to turn a portion of spaghetti around the fork and then merely bend the head and swallow the delicious morsel."

"First: The mouth must be wide open."

"Second: It must be eaten while the spaghetti is hot."

With the ritual thus simplified your correspondent will strive once more to eat the delicious morsel in the approved manner. Hereafter he has had considerable difficulty in winding up the spaghetti even when backstopping the fork with the spoon and in keeping his mouth wide open until a forkful has been pitched in and trampled down under the eaves.

The circulation of "The Spaghetti News" is 200,000. Copies are free.

The pages are three inches by six. The advertising rates are $50 a page, but political advertising is $1000 a page. The editor announces that he is giving free art work and space to all right Democratic party. However, no other party is advertising in the publication.

At The Movies

AT THE CAPITOL

As a stage play, presented several years ago, "The Warrens of Virginia," was interesting and proved successful, but when compared to the new William Fox screen version, which is now playing a two day engagement at the Capitol theatre, the motion picture comes out with flying colors.

With all the increased facilities of the picture, with the great opportunities to portray the real spirit of the old South, the story takes on an appeal that never was felt in the legitimate stage attraction.

The picture was directed by Elmer Clifton who staged "Down to the Sea in Ships," and other recent photoplay successes.

MARY PICKFORD USES COSTUMES MERELY AS BACKGROUND

By Sally.

When I first saw the "still pictures" of Mary Pickford's latest production, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," showing elaborate costumes and stupendous settings, the thought occurred to me that another "million dollar" photoplay with the story buried in a clutter of clothes and scenery was about to be wished on an all too tolerant public again. However, a talk with Manager Simon, of the Eltinge Theatre, and a letter he showed me from Miss Pickford herself has led me to believe that more than likely I am mistaken.

It is difficult to get Miss Pickford to say anything about her pictures in advance of their showing. But when Mr. Simon contracted with United Artists for the first run here of "Dorothy Vernon," starting tomorrow night he also prevailed upon the star to set down in a letter the points she attempted to establish in this picture. This letter reads as follows:

"I have tried to make 'Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall' such an interesting human story, that you see the costumes only as a natural background. It is true that we have garbed it elaborately, and the set-

Things are magnificent to a degree; nevertheless, they are never overdrawn—never anything but secondary to the prime importance of the story.

"I hope 'Dorothy Vernon' will make your wife remember the time you told her she was the only woman in the world, and make you hold her hand while she's remembering it."

"Throughout the play Dorothy is first of all a real human girl. The fact that she lived in Haddon Hall before the day of bobbed hair and jazz is only an incident that lends dignity to the background, but certainly takes no humanness from the story. After all, you know, a young woman of spirit in Kankakee in 1924 is the same at heart as a young woman in Leicestershire in 1724."

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Compliments: Your "Krumbed Bran," used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple.

Yours truly,

Arlington H. Carman,

Pasadena, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purifies them. It acts exactly as nature acts. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary bran. Eat two tablespoons daily—in cereal cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbed, is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

At The Movies

AT THE CAPITOL
As a stage play, presented several years ago, "The Warrens of Virginia," was interesting and proved successful, but when compared to the new William Fox screen version, which is now playing a two day's engagement at the Capitol theatre, the motion picture comes out with flying colors.

With all the increased facilities of the picture, with the great opportunities to portray the real spirit of the old South, the story takes on an appeal that never was felt in the legitimate stage attraction.

The picture was directed by Elmer Clifton who staged "Down to the Sea in Ships," and other recent photoplay successes.

MARY PICKFORD USES COSTUMES MERELY AS BACKGROUND
By Sally.

When I first saw the "still pictures" of Mary Pickford's latest production, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," showing elaborate costuming and stupendous settings, the thought occurred to me that another "million dollar" photoplay with the story buried in a clutter of clothes and scenery was about to be wished on an all too tolerant public again. However, a talk with Manager Simon, of the Eltinge Theatre, and a letter he showed me from Miss Pickford herself has led me to believe that more than likely I am mistaken.

It is difficult to get Miss Pickford to say anything about her pictures in advance of their showing. But when Mr. Simon contacted with United Artists for the first run here of "Dorothy Vernon," starting tomorrow night he also prevailed upon the star to set down in a letter the points she attempted to establish in this picture. This letter reads as follows:

"I have tried to make 'Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall' such an interesting human story, that you see the costumes only as a natural background. It is true that we have garbed it elaborately, and the settings are magnificent to a degree; nevertheless, they are never overdrawn—never anything but secondary to the prime importance of the story.

"I hope 'Dorothy Vernon' will make your wife remember the time you told her she was the only woman in the world, and make you hold her hand while she's remembering it."

"Throughout the play Dorothy is first of all a real human girl. The fact that she lived in Haddon Hall before the day of bobbed hair and jazz is only an incident that lends dignity to the background, but certainly takes no humanness from the story. After all, you know, a young woman of spirit in Kankakee in 1924 is the same at heart as a young woman in Leicestershire in 1724."

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Gentlemen: Your "Krumbled Bran" used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple. Yours truly, Arlington H. Carman, Patchogue, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the

No more important work lies ahead of the various political groups than that of getting the vote out. Burleigh county should participate in the nation-wide movement to see that there is a great popular expression at the polls—in other words that at least a majority of persons entitled to vote cast their ballots, Tuesday, November 4.
Comparison of figures through the years shows a lack of interest in voting. New voters who are about to cast their first vote, do not feel the privilege as keenly as did their fathers a generation ago. It is the duty of the men and women who have had the right of franchise for some time to inspire and educate the voter who will cast his or her first presidential ballot within the next two weeks.
There is nothing partisan in the efforts to get out the vote. Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and other organizations comprised of alert and zealous citizens are putting forth an extra effort to overcome the lethargy toward voting. It is a solemn duty, this act of voting, and not to be discharged lightly and without thought and application. Bound up in the election results may be your personal welfare—the happiness and security of your family and your property. So please but by all means vote.

KEEPING UP THE RECORD
Bismarck's two hospital records are maintained on the standard of the national publications "Hospitals" and "Principles of Hospital Management." Again the two publications are at the top, for schools of the size of Bismarck. They are kept up only to the publications of a Minneapolis hospital, where records are much greater. The Bismarck record of the High School publications are kept up to the standard of these contests in the past.

A VALUABLE ASSET
Bismarck's two hospitals are approved by the examining committee of the American College of Surgeons as hospitals of the highest standards. It is significant that out of five hospitals of 100 beds or more in North Dakota meeting these requirements Bismarck has two. While the percentage of approved hospitals for North Dakota as a whole is 58.3 per cent, the Bismarck record is 100 per cent. Both of Bismarck's hospitals perform a valuable mission for the people of a large section of North Dakota, and should be appreciated.

AFTERMATH OF VISIT
"Prince of Wales is being presented with a book of newspaper clippings consisting of 61,120 references to his visit to Long Island and weighing 325 pounds. If some thoughtful person will now present his royal highness with a copy of the New York telephone directory, he will have enough light literature to last the winter."
The foregoing is quoted from the Toronto Evening Telegram. In the prince's own empire. Anyone who believes that a keen sense of humor is lacking among the English and their Dominion cousins certainly has another guess coming.

CHICKEN WITH EIGHT HEARTS
A chicken with eight hearts, killed by Mrs. C. D. Evans, is reported from Evening Shade, Ark.
That excites curiosity. But the real marvel goes unnoticed. It is that billions of other chickens have only one heart. Nature standardizes. She produces exceptions rarely. And when an exception does slip through, especially in the form of high intelligence, nature usually destroys her "blunder" quickly.
A super-brain is generally handicapped by a sickly body. The great Darwin wrote most of his stuff in bed. He had to—an invalid suffering tortures.

ELECTION COSTS
The election in England costs London's business alone 500 million dollars. This is the estimate by a leading Lombard street banker. He's figuring the cost of disruption of trade by political uncertainty.
If we calculated the cost of our national elections on that basis, instead of by contributions to campaign chests, the figure would give an adding machine a headache. But it's cheap at any price, this periodical focusing of public attention on the serious issues that really count.

BLINDNESS
Nearly 5000 American men, women and children have been blinded in the last 12 months. Eighty-five per cent were men and boys—naturally, being more reckless.
Industrial accidents stand at the top of the list. There's still a lot of room for more safeguarding devices, especially around machinery. Individual personal caution is the greatest protection, after all's said and done. This is proved by the fact that in dynamite-making, an extremely hazardous occupation, there are few accidents. Extreme danger compels constant caution.

A "RICH" QUARRY!
Now that Richard Blakeborough is dead, his friends in England are gathering together his writings, of which he left more than a ton of manuscript. He jotted down everything from poems, folk-tales, odd customs, old songs, to observations of what he had seen and heard during the day.
An entire ton! It would be a rich quarry for those congressmen whose chief occupation is oratory and whose chief product is words.
An exchange says William G. McAdoo would make good on the stage. The exchange just possibly has in mind, something on the order of "lost in New York."

Editorial Review

Reproduced in this column, may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

GOOD ADVICE

(Springfield Daily News)
Allens who come to the United States expecting to make this country their future home, were advised the other day by a justice of the supreme court of the state of New York, to forget their native political sentiments when they arrive on American soil. This is good advice and also timely.

One of the prevailing troubles that our Americanization authorities and agencies encounter in their work of popularizing the democracy of the United States is that of overcoming prejudices and political differences of opinion which possess so many of the foreign born who come to our shores. It ought to be plainly apparent, for example, to any intelligent man or woman from another country that so long as they cling to native customs and political principles, they cannot take a firm grasp upon American ideals.

In short one cannot come from Poland or Germany or Italy or any other European country and divide his affection for the new country with devotion to the old. There has been entirely too much of this sort of thing practiced among the foreign-born in America. The result has been that we have branches here of the Fascisti, the Bolsheviks and other alien political principles, and interracial controversies break out ever so often.

Somewhere it was related the other day that when Locatelli, the Italian aviator who lost his plane while accompanying the American fliers, landed in Boston, a division of opinion existed between his former fellow countrymen as to just how far they should go in honoring him. Some claimed he was a follower of Mussolini and enemies of the Italian dictator refused to engage in the welcome.

This sort of thing greatly retards the growth of Americanism of an alien-born resident here and away it is unpopular among native Americans to observe such movements fostered in our cities. All of which we should think the well-meaning foreigner would see and appreciate.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"It is too queer what became of the House That Jack Built," remarked Mister Spratt at the breakfast table.

"Certainly is," said Mrs. Spratt, helping herself to another piece of bacon.

"The queerest thing we ever heard of," said the Twins pouring more molasses over their pancakes. "But Jack and Jill and Mrs. John didn't say anything. And they weren't eating much either. Jack was thinking of all his work for nothing."

Jill was thinking of her dolls and all her play furniture and everything. And Mrs. John was thinking of her lost cook-stove and her lost sewing machine, and all her fall sewing to do, too! And her bread-pan was all set for raising!

"Well, well, well! Good-morning, everybody!" said a cheery voice. And there stood old Daddy Gander in the doorway, his magic dust-pan under his arm.

"Hello, Daddy," said Jack Spratt. "Come on and sit down. Have you heard the news?"

"No," said Daddy Gander. "You don't mean to say that the Old Shoe Woman had been spanking her children again, do you?"

"No, worse than that," said Mrs. Spratt with her mouth full of bacon. "You don't mean that old Poppleton Bun, the miller-man, has gone to sleep and snored flour-dust all over town, do you?" said Daddy Gander.

"No, it's worse than that," cried Mrs. John. "Our house is gone! The nice little house that my son, Jack, built up on Pippin Hill!"

"Yes, sir!" said Nancy. "It's all gone. Nothing left but the cellar. Nick and I saw it just now."

"Land o' Goshen," cried Daddy Gander. "I never heard of such a thing. And Mother Goose away, too! She might know what to do if she were at home. You don't s'pose—"

"What, Daddy?" cried everybody. "You don't s'pose—"

Daddy stopped again. "Oh, I just cannot say it. I don't know why I ever thought of such a thing! You don't suppose—"

"What don't we suppose, sir?" said Jack Spratt.

"You don't suppose," whispered Daddy Gander, "that Peter Peter could have taken it, do you?"

"Peter Peter!" cried Mrs. Spratt. "Why should he take it?"

"Well," said Daddy Gander with a wise wag of his head, "they say that after he got married he hadn't a cent to live on and he had to put his wife into a pumpkin-chest. So Daddy Gander, you're an old gossip," said Mrs. John. "Peter Peter didn't take our house any more than he did the moon. Why, only yesterday Mrs. Peter told me how happy she was when she came to get my recipe for pumpkin-pies. Just give Peter Peter a chance. He's young yet and it isn't everybody who is as smart as my Jack and can build a house. Oh, boo hoo! I forgot! Our nice little house is gone and I'll never see it any more."

"Fiddlesticks!" said Daddy Gander. "We'll find it for you, my goodness! You'd think you had lost a diamond ring, or something you could hide behind a potato-skin. A house! Why, my goodness, it ought to be as easy to find as a stone-bruise! Come on, Twins. Here's my magic dust pan. Hop on and we'll

I wonder if you have noticed, Little Marquise, that I haven't written very often lately. It is because when I am far away from the little secret drawer which is the resting place of my communications, I always feel as though I should not write for fear those very sacred documents would fall into less sympathetic possession than yours.

However, now I am quite sure I shall soon be back in my apartment packing up to return here, and I shall put this letter in that drawer where it belongs.

The resting place is getting a little overcrowded, consequently, some of my offusions will soon have to be weeded out and placed in a safety deposit vault, to be opened only after my death or some time when I feel as you did, that all my secrets must be burned.

I have come up into the attic of my old home, Little Marquise, to be alone, and once more to get my mind arranged and my life ordered. Mother is sleeping under the care of her old maid, who has administered an opiate to her. She insisted upon sitting up all night alone with her dead. She would not let any one, not even me, stay with her.

"I will have him such a little while, Leslie," she said as she raised her face to mine with a pathetic smile. "Let me stay with him tonight. Tomorrow I shall take up life without him, but tonight, dear child, let me have him all to myself."

I wish little Marquise, that you had left some of those letters, in which I know your heart had spoken. I am sure that when your king died and you could not mourn

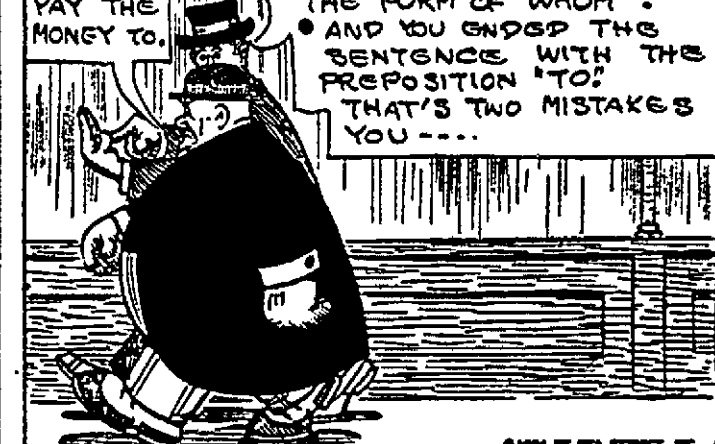

him, you had to place in the secret drawer some memento of your grief. Poor little, gay little Marquise! You had to smile outwardly when your heart was breaking; that was the great penance for your sin.

That one letter which you left to me who found it in the secret drawer of the old dead, told me much more than was written on its pages. Yours was the most sorrowful, the most tragic of partings, and some way when I saw my mother enter that silent room as though it were her own particular right, my thought went back to you, dear little Marquise, and the words that you wrote: "They tell me I am going to die, and so I am taking back my confidences and laying them one by one on the fire, for no one, not even those who love me best, may know, as these yellowing sheets of paper might tell, that the gay little Marquise was beloved by a king."

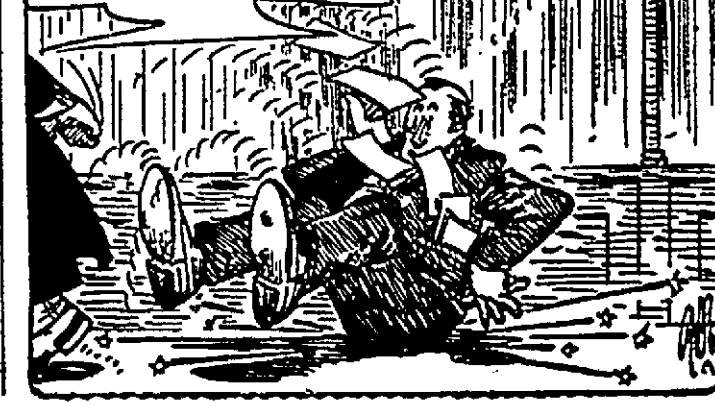

They had not known your joy, Little Marquise! They must not know your sorrow. You had to bear it alone. Under this guise, nothing is more tragic than death, when he comes to bear away the one you love.

In that great moment after my father's death when Jack took me in his arms, and I knew there was perfect sympathy between us, all thought of living my life without my husband, of not being able if I should be left as is my mother, to say: "Tonight, let me have him all to myself!" had completely gone out of my mind. Consequently, when my thoughts went back to you, and I remembered that you had had no right to mourn, that you were still called "the gay little Marquise," while all the while your very soul was clamoring to be called "the sorrowful little Marquise." I knew that my place was with Jack, whatever the years might bring.

OLDEST MAN IS 163

By Albert Apple

Oldest living man in the world is the Manchurian giant, Yuan Kwo-Chang. He claims he's 163. Orientals accept him as authentic. The Chinese, in particular, believe he doesn't exaggerate his age. Marshal Chang pensions him, 200 yen a year.

And yet Yuan, living his life in a half-barbaric Mongolian district, hasn't actually "lived" as much as the average American of 30.

What counts isn't the number of birthdays, but how much happens between birthdays.

Our generation, amid scientific marvels and with the whole world literally at our door as a result of transportation magic, crams into one year as much experience, learning, sensations and impressions as our great-grandfathers got in a dozen.

In the one-minute march from death cell to electric chair, the condemned murderer lives through an eternity. In a second of sleep, you can "go through" years of life as vivid as the real thing, though it's all a dream.

Time is relative.

Save $1000. With it, you can travel more than Marco Polo in his whole lifetime. Or Columbus or any of the early explorers. The main difference is that you will not have their hardships. And you will be exploring the known instead of the uncharted.

Men now in the prime of life will have a chance to live 1000 years, by approaching medical discoveries. So claimed the eminent German scientist, Professor Fritz Haber, recently. He expects the elimination of causes of natural death.

After enduring a few centuries, people would begin to curse the scientists who condemned them to the 1000 years. Life begins to get dull after the eightieth birthday or before. The average old person is quite calm as he contemplates the approaching end—more than resigned, he is willing. He has tasted life to its full extent and is ready for another world.

This earth is not interesting enough to be a permanent home, nor even for 1000 years. Life is a journey. And a gradual sameness makes any long trip tiresome toward its close. The ocean may be at its best, delightful. But passengers still thrill when they sight land—destination—nearly as much so as the early explorers.

New York, Oct. 21.—Prof. Lionel C. Reno is in town. Prof. Reno stands on street corners and tells people how to improve their memories.

For instance, you would like to memorize the radio letters of the bigger stations throughout the country. Study the professor's method. "Use association," says Professor Reno, "and make a phrase of some sort and use as many words as you have letters."

Thus you would remember KFSU of Los Angeles by thinking "Kissing Fifty-Seven Girls."

And for WEAF of New York you'd say to yourself, "Where Every American Flights."

In Butte, Mont., there is Station KFAP. Naturally you'll always associate with Butte, "Keeping Fies And Pretty."

Of course, you may have kissed 57 girls in Los Angeles, and kept free and pretty in Butte, but—did you ever see an American fight in New York?

An American fighting in New York would find himself greatly outnumbered by the foe.

Of all the varied publications that go in upon a sunbeamed reader, not the least interesting of the group is "The Spaghetti News," an infant of the journalistic wilderness of Gotham.

Mr. Gugliucci, the esteemed editor, gives in the current number the proper directions for eating spaghetti.

Writes he, "It is no longer a difficult task to eat spaghetti properly, for the only thing about it is to turn a portion of spaghetti around the fork and then merely bend the head and swallow the delicious morsel.

"First: The mouth must be wide open.

"Second: It must be eaten while the spaghetti is hot."

With the ritual thus simplified your correspondent will strive once more to eat the delicious morsel in the approved manner. Heretofore he has had considerable difficulty in winding up the spaghetti even when backstopping the fork with the spoon and in keeping his mouth wide open until a forkful has been pitched in and trampled down under the eaves.

The circulation of "The Spaghetti News" is 200,000. Copies are free. The pages are three inches by six. The advertising rates are $50 a page, but political advertising is $1000 a page. The editor announces that he is giving free art work and space to the Democratic party. However, no other party is advertising in the publication.

Cap Higgins, the artist, drove in from Jersey and stabled his car in an uptown garage that overlooks the Hudson and the Jersey shore. The man who took charge of the car was 50 and has lived in New York all his life.

Higgins made some casual remark about his ride through Jersey.

"You know, I guess Jersey's a nice place, all right," the garage man remarked. "I've heard a lot about it and I been intendin' to go over there some day, but I ain't just got around to it yet."

FABLES ON HEALTH

WHEN YOU GO TO BED

Everybody knows about "getting-up" exercises are not so prevalent. As the physical director told Mr. Jones of Anytown, the last exercises of the day should be fashioned according to the occupation.

Quite obviously the person who has been standing on her or his feet all day behind a store counter wants to sit down or lie down.

Now the relaxing exercises are needed. Get a good relaxing posture. Keep the head and knees and back well relaxed. Sort of droop toward the floor. Then stoop over and get on all fours, walking slowly ahead, like a bear amble.

Again swing limply toward the floor with hands swinging limply and back and head bent. Now swing in a loose circle, moving upward to the right and downward to the left.

Sitting down upon a backless chair swing the body limply in a circle. Then take a hot bath and crawl into bed.

THE VOTER

(By Florence Borner)

Supreme he stands; the ballot in his hand;
Gives him the power to overrule the land;
To him the politician bends the knee,
To him the people look to save their liberty.

The voting booth, his stronghold, overnight,
Decides the fate of millions by its might;
Through it some reach the heights of fame and power,
While others lose these things inside an hour.

Without its portals, Privilege trembling sits,
Full well she knows the cup that Rancor sips;
While Truth, with anxious face sits just within,
Waiting for the outcome—will she win?

Then use the ballot, do your duty well,
And of your prowess future you shall tell;
For while that slip of paper you hold fast,
You have the fate of nations in your grasp.

OPERATION OF STATE'S HAIL BUREAU UPHELD

Manager Denies Extravagance in Adjusting of Losses in the Field

SAYS COST IS LOW

Charges made in some quarters against the state hail insurance department's method of operation, particularly with reference to adjustments of hail losses, are made the basis of a statement issued by Martin Hagen, manager of the department.

"It has always been the policy of the department to have adjustments made in every part of the state so as not to incur great expense in mileage going to and from when adjusting claims," Mr. Hagen says. "In some counties we have more men, in some less, depending on our experience with reference to number of losses for past years for such counties. It would seem to us good policy to have enough of such local adjusters on hand to save expense since such men are paid only when they are actually in the field adjusting losses."

Adjustment by the state department, he asserts, is made at reasonable expense.

"We shall readily admit that adjusting as many claims as the department has to handle naturally costs a great deal of money and is out greatest item of expense, but, if we pay $6.00 per day as compared to the line company of $10.00 per day, isn't it reasonable to suppose we are saving $4.00 per day for each of our men on wages alone?"

Mr. Hagen also asserted that line companies allow men money at not less than 20 cents per mile, whereas most of the department's adjusters use their own cars at 15 cents per mile and six cents on longer trips. He declared that the average cost of adjusting claims by private companies is figured at $8.04 and by the state department at $3.46.

The operating expenses of the department averaged 3.7 percent of the losses, a remarkably low figure, he declared. He also declared the state hail cost in 1924 is 4.7 percent, with an average six rate of 5.5 percent, which he asserted is unusually low.

The manager also asserted that the department had informed its employees it does not care what their pocket ties are, so long as they keep them to themselves.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

To the Editor of The Bismarck Tribune:

As election is getting close and the newspapers are bringing us what I will call "party goods," its worth for us voters and taxpayers to get down to the bottom of the matter and see what such paper is given us the real truth.

I read in a Bismarck paper printed in the German print, under date of Oct. 17th, "Under the grain grading act" the farmers of North Dakota saved $6,000,000 (six million dollars). I would like to be explained that I find that the law enacted by the N. P. L. in 1919, part of S. 3 reads: "In establishing such grades, dockage shall be considered as being of two classes, first, that having value, second, that having no value, the former to be considered and paid for at its market value. I do not know of a single farmer in this vicinity who was benefited by this N. P. L. dockage law, yet this admirable dockage newspaper does not say that the operation of this law as long as it lasted cost the taxpayers of N. D. "not to exceed $35,000 a year" as long as it was a law.

To enlighten some of you voters and taxpayers, I am giving you some law that the good N. P. L. repealed, which did not cost us $35,000 a year. S. 3105 of the Compiled Laws of North Dakota reads as follows: "Grading of grain. All public warehouses within this State, as defined by S. 3107, when requested by the seller, shall, before testing for grade any grain handled by them, remove therefrom and make due allowance for any dockage of such grain made by reason of the presence of straw, weed seeds, dirt or any other foreign matter. Such test shall be made by taking a fair sample of such grain and cleaning the same before testing for the grade of such grain. And no public warehouse within this State, as defined in S. 3107, shall grade any grain offered to it for sale in this State, after such request has been made, until due allowance has been made for such dockage and such dockage has been deducted or removed from such grain; and, when such dockage has been removed, deducted or allowance made for the same by such public warehouse, such warehouse shall proceed to test such grain for grade and shall grade the same as if such dockage had been removed, deducted or allowance made therefor as provided herein."

S. 3106 provides a penalty for the violation of S. 3105. In my mind we had a grain grading law in North Dakota before we ever dreamed of the N. P. L. Here you got the law before you that we had, at no extra expense of the taxpayers, it saved us in taxes $35,000 a year, if any one now tells you that we did not have a grain grading law before the N. P. L. gave us one, you can refer him to the above written laws which the N. P. L. repealed.

Another newspaper published in Bismarck in the English print under date of Oct. 16th, speaks of looting the "Guaranty Fund." This is a law enacted by the N. P. L. In my mind I think that law loots itself. I do not wish to take up too much space in your paper. However, I say this if our North Dakota citizens would not allow themselves to be led astray, compare the laws that we had, and that we got now, study the laws and there would be no question but what the coming election would be either Republican or Democratic principals.

Even though I am the defeated Independent candidate at the June primary election for State Senator of Burleigh county, as a farmer and taxpayer I am still interested in this coming fall election.

Many Bismarck Folks Have Found How to Make Work Easier.

No rest from the soreness, lameness and weakness.
Many folks have found relief through Doan's Pills. They are a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys.
Bismarck people recommend Doan's.
Mrs. Jack Kenyon, 417 Mandan Ave., Bismarck, says: "I had an attack of kidney trouble. I had puffy sacs underneath my eyes and pains in my back. It was hard for me to do my housework at times. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Three boxes of Doan's Pills cured me. I am glad to recommend Doan's, knowing them to be a remedy of wonderful merit, for the cure they made has lasted."

American Women Aware of Big Benefit Protective Tariff Has Proved to Home

THEY KNOW THAT WAGE EARNERS CANNOT FIND WORK TO KEEP THEM BUSY IF COMPETITION WITH CHEAP FOREIGN GOODS IS ALLOWED

This is the third of a series of five articles by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, and chairman of the Women's Division of that committee. Mrs. Hert discusses what she considers vital campaign issues from the woman's standpoint.

BY MRS. ALVIN T. HERT

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert

The average American family is happy and prosperous today. The average American boy and girl have enough food and clothing to make them comfortable. For this we are all grateful. Every man and every woman who wants a job should have one.

There are fundamental laws of supply and demand. There are basic economic principles which must be satisfied before a job can be provided for the man who can fill it. The women of this country have demonstrated their ability to get at the real facts underlying any business problem. They are not satisfied with the half-truths which are frequently presented to them in tariff arguments.

It has been said frequently that women are the purchasing agents for the 25,000,000 families in the United States. This is true, but before they can purchase for these families they must have money in their pockets.

Women refuse to accept the statement that what the United States needs is free trade in order that we may buy cheaply the products of other countries.

How can we buy unless the wage earner of the family has a job and is earning money?

There are two sides to this tariff problem, the buying and the selling. Under the Democratic one-sided theory of low tariff on imported goods, this country has suffered the worst pangs of unemployment.

With this system at work, American women have known what it meant to be unable to buy bread for their children. At the same time, American men have known what it was to tramp the streets looking for work.

3107, shall grade any grain offered to it for sale in this State, after such request has been made, until due allowance has been made for such dockage and such dockage has been deducted or removed from such grain; and, when such dockage has been removed, deducted or allowance made for the same by such public warehouse, such warehouse shall proceed to test such grain for grade and shall grade the same as if such dockage had been removed, deducted or allowance made therefor as provided herein."

FARMER HURT IN RUNAWAY
New Leipzig, N. D., Oct. 21.—Fred Oelke, farmer, is in serious condition from injuries received when his team ran away as he was climbing on to a wagon and he was thrown beneath the wheels rolling over his neck and head.

As an interesting and significant contrast, we should bear in mind the fact that under a Republican protective tariff law the prosperity of this country has been such that women have been able to spend $40,000,000,000 per annum, or nearly 70 per cent of the national income, upon retail purchases.

Four years ago when the Republican party came into power in this country there were 5,000,000 men out of employment.

This condition of affairs is a decided contrast to the situation in August, 1924. Industry has known a great revival and agriculture is beginning to reap the benefits of restored prosperity. Wages have increased and complaint of unemployment is at an end.

President Coolidge in accepting the Republican nomination for President on August 14 last, said:

"As a source of revenue the tariff surpasses all expectations in producing an annual return of the unprecedented sum of about $500,000,000. A fiscal policy which places a large and much needed revenue in the public treasury while stimulating business to a condition of itself against any criticism. Its merits are demonstrated by its results. We have protected our own inhabitants from the economic disaster of an invasion of too many foreign people or too much foreign merchandise."

The average American working man is accustomed to high wages and his family is accustomed to a higher scale of living than is possible for the family of any other working man in the world. He knows that it is of no avail to have goods on a department store shelf marked at a slightly lower cost if he is unable to earn the money to buy them.

The Republican party's record shows that it has continually advocated a protective tariff.

The Democrats charge that a protective tariff keeps out imports and destroys competition. It must be clear that even if a Republican protective tariff law did keep out imports, the inevitable effect would be to create new American enterprises of like character and thus increase domestic competition in even greater proportion than foreign competition is diminished.

A recent writer stated that a tariff law "which affords every advantage to foreign sellers in the American market to the detriment of American labor and industry can hardly be held to benefit this country. Here in America we know that we must produce and earn before we can spend and consume."

A tariff law which diverts American money from the payment of American wages to the payment of foreign wages cannot possibly benefit the American working man.

The women voters of this country have heard President Coolidge recount the large revenue which has come to this country with the present protective tariff in vogue. They know that unemployment has been ended. They know that there is a job for every man in this country. Women know that they have more money in the family pocketbook to purchase comforts for their families when manufacturers are encouraged to manufacture goods which they can sell at a profit and thus give employment to men and women who want to work.

This question of the tariff is far reaching and every thoughtful woman must understand that it is tied up in all directions with the income which the head of the family is able to earn. Every woman knows that it is vitally important that her husband should have an adequate income. Altogether the tariff demands of women this year a thoughtful answer when they go to the polls in November to cast a vote for the best interests of their families and the communities in which they live.

Billy Evans Says

Right ultimately prevails. Often the road is beset with many obstacles.

Take the case of Walter Johnson as a concrete example.

No finer character has ever graced baseball. His whole life has been one of right. He is the ideal for every youngster who aspires to shine in sport to pattern after.

For 18 years Walter Johnson strove for the chance to pitch in a world series. It finally came.

In his first two starts he was beaten. He gave a heroic exhibition in the first game, a 12-inning affair, but was badly battered in the second.

The word painters counted him out. The gist of their obituary was the big chance came too late.

Destiny and the power of right had other plans.

Destiny shaped Walter Johnson's greatest chance after he had been consigned to the class of once greats.

He made the most of it and emerged from the series its biggest hero. The world at large was pleased.

A half hour before the start of the final game of the 1924 series I walked into the Washington clubhouse.

It was deserted save for Walter Johnson. He was sitting on one of the benches in a remote corner of the dressing room looking off into space.

He didn't hear me enter. I stopped to grieve with him. His face was a picture of one who had failed. There was a look of sadness there that was unlike the smiling Johnson I knew.

"Sorry to intrude, Walter," I said, "but I have a couple of baseballs I would like to give you an autograph. The request came this morning from some admirers of yours in the west."

"That's pleasing news and I certainly will be glad to autograph them. I feared after my failure in these two games that the signature wouldn't mean very much."

There was no jest in the reply; Johnson was in dead earnest. To him the series was over. He had no idea that he would get a chance to work in the final game. The world series that he had waited 18 years for had been a failure.

Then destiny stepped in to play a most important part. When Washington tied up the score in the eighth, Johnson was the only man left with a "chance" of holding the opposition.

His performance in the last four innings of the deciding game is now a matter of history. He struck out five men, all of them in a pinch.

It was a fitting finale to a great series. It may have rung down the curtain on Johnson's big league career. He is not certain that he will return.

It was a thrilling climax that pleased every sportsman regardless of how he was pulling.

Baseball needs men like Walter Johnson, a real man.

The all-star baseball teams opened their world tour in Canada, and we have a suspicion that is not all they opened.

The promoters are trying to match McTigue and Tunney. . . . This fight would be worth going miles to avoid.

Considering his skill as a mascot, it seems strange that Coolidge reduced and he was taken to his home.

Both the parents of the boy exonerated Mr. Scorthorn of any blame in the accident.

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Ocelot's Thoughts

"Sometimes," said the Ocelot, "I am called a young, small jaguar. But I am not. A jaguar is an enemy of mine, and it is not natural that I would be an enemy of myself."

"So I hope it is quite clear to you that I am not a jaguar. Of course I belong to the wild cat family. My home used to be in South America, and there I lived in the jungle."

"You can see that I look something like a leopard, too. Yet at the same time I look like a cat, particularly while I am young."

"My fur is beautiful and my yellow and black coat is very handsome. My yellow eyes have been much admired and when I was young I was quite playful at times."

"But I am not young enough for that now, though I am still far from being old."

"I remember those days when I lived where it was very wild. Perhaps I should say that I remember those nights!"

"When night-time came how I did go forth to hunt. I looked for small animals—animals I could do with and eat."

"I naturally did not want to fight any animal who could have had the better of me."

"Oh, no, I was ready to spring on the weaker ones, the ones who

"Here I Am for People to Look At."

could do nothing but beg for mercy. "Mercy was the last thing I would give them."

"My yellow eyes, which you admire, looked at them with a cruel expression, for I pride myself on cruelty and with."

"I would say to them, 'I have you now. I shall play with you a bit, just to show I can be playful, though sometimes it is true I have been really and truly playful.'"

"But not with my prey! Oh, no, indeed. I shall be playful for a little while with you and then I shall have a delicious meal."

"You little animal, will be my meal. You will be a delicious meal."

"You will be a meal fit for an ocelot. You see, my name is hard to say. I can't pronounce it very well myself. So I won't bother you to pronounce it."

"I am considerate in that way. Perhaps you would rather have a try at pronouncing my name, but I wouldn't want to cause you the effort."

"No, you might become tired in trying to do this. So I will save you from becoming tired."

"Perhaps you would rather become tired than have all your delicious qualities enjoyed by me."

"But, you see, I don't bother to find out what you want in this respect."

"I am not really considering you at all."

"Then I would look wildly at them and how I would frighten them!"

"I would catch birds, too. Well, here I am for people to look at. I am fed well. I keep well and I look well."

"But I cannot do any harm here. They see to that. So when I think I think of the days when I did do wild things."

"My thoughts are of those I have captured and of those I have had at my mercy."

"My thoughts are not the thoughts of a gentle pussy cat. No they are the thoughts of a wild, wild cat."

"But when pussy, gentle pussy, goes after a bird, there comes a wild look in his eyes, too, and he is not so gentle with the bird."

"Oh, no, he gets the bird at his mercy, too, and the bird's cries for mercy or pity do not make any difference to him."

"I will look at you now, and you will say that I am beautiful and that maybe I look as though I could be petted."

"But I wouldn't advise you to try it."

"Not that I would mind, but I would only be cross to you and you don't interest me as food, and so I give this free advice."

OPERATION OF STATE'S HAIL BUREAU UPHOLD

Manager Denies Extravagance in Adjusting of Losses in the Field

SAYS COST IS LOW

Charges made in some quarters against the state hail insurance department's method of operation, particularly with reference to adjustments of hail losses, are made the basis of a statement issued by Martin Hagen, manager of the department.

"It has always been the policy of the department to have adjusters located in every part of the state so as not to incur great expense in making long trips to and from adjusting claims," Mr. Hagen says. "In some counties we have more men, in some less, depending on our experience with reference to number of losses for past years for such counties. It would seem to you good policy to have enough of such local adjusters on hand to save expense since such men are paid only when they are actually in the field adjusting losses."

Adjustment by the state department, he asserts, is made at reasonable expense.

"We shall readily admit that adjusting as many claims as the department has to handle naturally costs a great deal of money and is out greatest item of expense, but, if we pay $6.00 per day as compared to the line companies of $10.00 per day, isn't it reasonable to suppose we are saving $4.00 per day for each of our men on wages alone?"

Mr. Hagen also asserted that line companies allow men livery at not less than 20 cents per mile, whereas most of the department's adjusters use their own cars at 15 cents per mile and six cents on longer trips. He declared that the average cost of adjusting claims by private companies is figured at $8.00 and by the state department at $4.00.

The operating expenses of the department averaged 3.47 percent of its receipts, a remarkably low figure, he declared. He also declared the state hail cost in 1924 is 4.7 percent, with an average six rate of 5.5 percent, which he asserted is unusually low.

The manager also asserted that the department had informed its employees it does not care what their politics are, so long as they keep them to themselves.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

To the Editor of The Bismarck Tribune:

A. election is getting close and the newspapers are bringing us what I will call "party goods." Its worth for us voters and taxpayers to get down to the bottom of the bucket and see whether such paper is given us the real truth.

I read in a Bismarck paper print-out in the German print, under date of Oct. 17th, "Under the grain grading act" the farmers of North Dakota saved $8,000,000 (six million dollars). I would like to be explained. I find that the law enacted by the N. P. L. in 1919, part of S. 3 reads: "In establishing such grades, dockage shall be considered as being of two classes, first, that having value, second, that having no value, and for the latter, considered and paid for as market value." I do not know of a single farmer here in this vicinity who was benefited by this N. P. L. dockage law, yet this admirable German newspaper does not say that the operation of this law as long as it lasted cost the taxpayers of N. D. "not to exceed $35,000 a year" as long as it was a law.

To enlighten some of you voters and taxpayers, I am giving you some law that the good N. P. L. repealed, which did not cost us $35,000 a year.

S. 3105 of the Compiled Laws of North Dakota reads as follows: "Grading of grain. All public warehouses within this State, as defined by S. 3107, when requested by the seller, shall, before testing for grade, remove all dockage from the grain, and for any dockage of such grain made by reason of the presence of straw, weed seeds, dirt or any other foreign matter. Such test shall be made by taking a fair sample of such grain and cleaning the same before testing for the grade of such grain. And no public warehouse within this State, as defined in S. 3107, shall grade any grain offered to it for sale in this State, after such request has been made, until such dockage has been made for such dockage and such dockage has been deducted or removed from such grain, and, when such dockage has been removed, deducted or allowance made for the same by such public warehouse, such warehouse shall proceed to test such grain for grade, and shall grade the same as if the dockage had been removed, deducted or allowance made therefor as provided herein."

S. 3106 provides a penalty for the violation of S. 3105. In my mind we had a good grading law in North Dakota before we ever dreamed of the N. P. L. Here you got the law before you had it, but at no extra expense of the taxpayers. It saved us in taxes $35,000 a year, if anyone now tells you that we did not have a grain grading law before the N. P. L. gave us one, you can refer him to the above written laws which the N. P. L. repealed.

Another newspaper published in Bismarck in the English print under date of Oct. 16th, speaks of looking the "Guaranty Fund." This is a law enacted by the N. P. L. ## IS YOUR WORK HARD?

Many Bismarck Folks Have Found How to Make Work Easier.

What is so hard as a day's work with an aching back?

Or sharp stabs of pain at every sudden twist or turn?

There is no peace from that dull ache.

No rest from the soreness, lameness and weakness.

Many folks have found relief through Doan's Pills. They are a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Bismarck people recommend Doan's.

Mrs. Jack Kenyon, 417 Mandan Ave., Bismarck, says: "I had an attack of kidney trouble. I had puffy eyes underneath my eyes and pains in my back. It was hard for me to do my housework at times. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Three boxes of Doan's Pills cured me. I am glad to recommend Doan's, knowing them to be a remedy of wonderful merit, for the cure they made has lasted."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Kenyon had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

American Women Aware of Big Benefit Protective Tariff Has Proved to Home

THEY KNOW THAT WAGE EARNERS CANNOT FIND WORK TO KEEP THEM BUSY IF COMPETITION WITH CHEAP FOREIGN GOODS IS ALLOWED

This is the third of a series of five articles by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, and chairman of the Women's Division of that committee. Mrs. Hert discusses what she considers vital campaign issues from the woman's standpoint.

BY MRS. ALVIN T. HERT

The average American family is happy and prosperous today. The average American boy and girl have enough food and clothing to make them comfortable. For this we are all grateful. Every man and every woman who wants a job should have one.

There are fundamental laws of supply and demand. There are basic economic principles which must be satisfied before a job can be provided for the man who can fill it. The women of this country have demonstrated their ability to get at the real facts underlying any business problem. They are not satisfied with the half-truths which are frequently presented to them in tariff arguments.

It has been said frequently that women are the purchasing agents for the 25,000,000 families in the United States. This is true, but before they can purchase for these families they must have money in their pockets.

Women refuse to accept the statement that what the United States needs is free trade in order that we may buy cheaply the products of other countries.

How can we buy unless the wage earner of the family has a job and is earning money?

There are two sides to this tariff problem, the buying and the selling. Under the Democratic one-sided theory of low tariff on imported goods, this country has suffered the worst pangs of unemployment.

With this system at work, American women have known what it meant to be unable to buy bread for their children. At the same time, American men have known what it was to tramp the streets looking for work.

S. 3107, shall grade any grain offered to it for sale in this State, after such request has been made, until such dockage has been made for such dockage and such dockage has been deducted or removed from such grain, and, when such dockage has been removed, deducted or allowance made for the same by such public warehouse, such warehouse shall proceed to test such grain for grade, and shall grade the same as if the dockage had been removed, deducted or allowance made therefor as provided herein."

S. 3106 provides a penalty for the violation of S. 3105. In my mind we had a good grading law in North Dakota before we ever dreamed of the N. P. L. Here you got the law before you had it, but at no extra expense of the taxpayers. It saved us in taxes $35,000 a year, if anyone now tells you that we did not have a grain grading law before the N. P. L. gave us one, you can refer him to the above written laws which the N. P. L. repealed.

Another newspaper published in Bismarck in the English print under date of Oct. 16th, speaks of looking the "Guaranty Fund." This is a law enacted by the N. P. L. In my mind I think that law looks itself. I do not wish to take up too much space in your paper. However, I say this of our North Dakota citizens would not allow themselves to be led astray, compare the law that we had, and that we got now, study the law and there would be no question but what the coming election would be either Republican or Democratic principals.

CONGESTION OF GRAIN MARKET HELD SERIOUS

Talk Embargo at Meeting of Regional Advisory Board Today

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 21.—Congestion of grain at Twin Cities and Duluth markets is so serious as to threaten an embargo was reported to the meeting of the Northwest Regional Advisory Board today by Chairman P. J. Coleman, chairman of a joint terminal grain committee.

Appeals to farmers and country elevators to withhold shipments was recommended by the committee but when an embargo was urged the matter was made a special order of business.

Terminal receipts are now 700 cars greater than the daily consumption marketed out of this market and the cars now loaded and in transit were said to be more than enough to fill up elevator storage. Reduction in shipments by 700 cars a day was urged as an absolute tieup would throw the market into confusion.

Capital Once Again Is Right-Side-Up

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

Washington, Oct. 21.—For one week, at least, Washington has experienced all the thrills of a metropolis. Like the old prospector who has made a strike and plays millionaire for a day, she has had her fling. From a rather easy-going, deliberate, if-not-to-day-then-tomorrow-kind of town, following all the circumlocutions of red tape and maintaining a formal and dignified mien befitting the national capital, Washington changed for a few brief days to the hectic hurry and mad rush of a busy barge that has important matters on hand on which hangs nothing less important than the fate of the universe.

The streets were packed with jostling, bustling crowds rushing madly hither and yon. Taxicabs dashed wildly through the thronged thoroughfares. Hawkers called their wares along the curbs and speculatively inclined gentlemen hung out signs announcing wares for sale more precious than gold and rubies—tickets to the series.

For after 38 years of striving, Washington had at last landed a world's championship baseball series, and for the time nothing else counted. The whole town went on a spree, and a hundred thousand or so fanatical fans from other cities rushed in to help the justification.

There'll be a headache when it is all over, of course. The high elevation of such periods doesn't last.

And when Washington settles back to the humdrum of being just the national capital, with nobody more important than the president and the cabinet members, or occasional foreign dignitaries like the Prince of Wales or King Benjamin to pique its interest, things are going to seem mighty prosy. There may even be a bit of remorse, as the residents view accumulation of work left undone which must now be tackled, and the deficit in their savings accounts due to dare-devil plunging on grandstand seats at world series prices.

But for the once it was one grand orgy. Inauguration of presidents, parades of returned victorious armies, never sent the staid capital to such heights of delicious recklessness. Even Cal Cal Coolidge celebrated his nineteenth wedding anniversary at the ball park—and Cal is beyond all question the mildest, coolest and most collected ball fan in the capital.

Being president, or even chief justice of the august and theoretically pedate supreme court, need not rob a man of his human qualities.

At least so thinks William Howard Taft, who has served in both jobs. Dignity and formality are all right, and within bounds must be maintained in these jobs, Bill thinks, but it does public officials good to come down off their high horse and think and talk like average human beings once in a while instead of seeking to maintain an attitude of superman superiority.

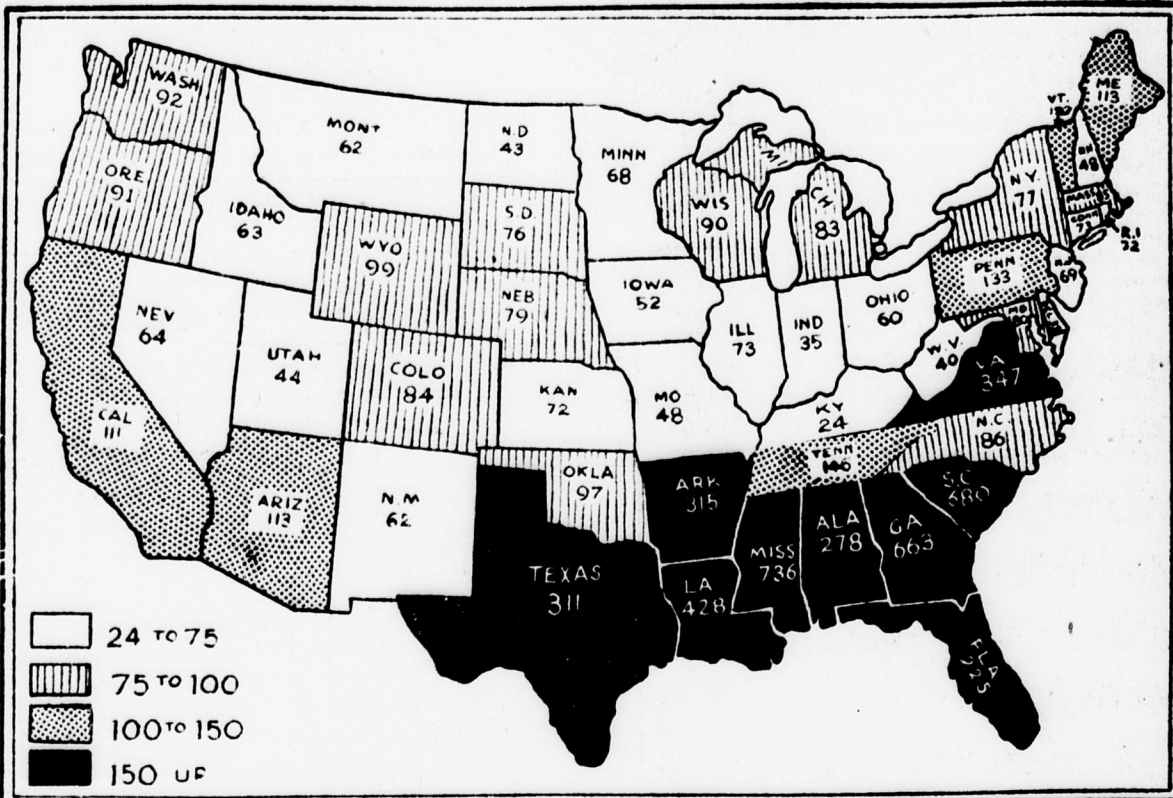

Bill demonstrated his belief, both by words and actions, the other day when the members of the supreme court gathered at the White House to pay their respects to the president before resuming their judicial labors after the summer's vacation.

It was, of course, a formal occasion—so long as they were with the president. Some of the members of the court attempted to continue the formalities, after they emerged from the executive presence in the photographers asked them if they wouldn't pose for a photograph. They demurred. "Owing for pictures wasn't seemly for supreme court justices," they suggested.

Then up spoke Bill, the chief justice of them all, in informal terms. "Come on," he said, waving his arms at the reluctant ones. "Can the chatter. Line up and do your stuff. You might as well; they'll get you anyhow. And smile while you're about it!"

Which, we submit, shows that Bill is a pretty good scout.

How They Voted in 1920 Election

HERE IS A MAP OF THE UNITED STATES SHOWING THE PERCENTAGE OF ABSENT OR STAY-AT-HOME VOTERS IN THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION OF 1920. THE PERCENTAGE IS BASED ON EACH ONE HUNDRED VOTES CAST IN THE STATE. FOR INSTANCE FOR EVERY 100 VOTES CAST IN ILLINOIS THERE WERE 73 ELIGIBLE VOTERS WHO DID NOT CAST A BALLOT, WHILE IN CALIFORNIA, FOR EVERY 100 VOTES CAST, THERE WERE 111 WHO REMAINED AWAY FROM THE POLLS.

For every 100 voters who went to the polls to vote for a president in 1920, there were 96 voters who remained away.

Here is a statistical table which shows the state, the number of citizens 21 years of age and over, the 1920 presidential vote, the number of absent voters and the number of stay-at-home voters per one hundred voters in each state.

The table affords the basis of serious study for those interested in civic welfare and the perpetuity of American institutions.

G. O. P. Expects a Coolidge But Not Party Victory

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

Washington, Oct. 20.—With the campaign entering the home stretch administration leaders profess to be more than ever confident that Cal Coolidge will come under the wire as an easy winner.

But while they claim Cal is safely out in front of LaFollette and Davis, where he cannot be pocketed and where he isn't even troubled by their dust the going for Republican congressional, senatorial and state entries is admittedly not so good.

Just why it is, they admit they do not know, but they confess Coolidge is running away ahead of his party. In confidence, they forecast a Coolidge rather than a Republican victory. For the election of a president, but the loss of both houses of Congress, can hardly be heralded as a great party victory. It would be a personal victory for Coolidge, not a triumph for the G. O. P. Yet that is exactly what even the most optimistic Republican leaders expect.

Just what the elements of popularity are in Coolidge's makeup that have brought about this situation the old-time politicians can't figure out. All the old bag of tricks has gone into the discard. They don't fit Cal at all.

These old-timers are loath to admit that perhaps it is Coolidge's very indifference that gives him his strength, yet a lot of them are beginning to get that "hunch" and to ponder it very seriously. It isn't for them, a particularly appealing matter for meditation, but they admit it appears an inescapable fact.

Anyway, something appears to them to be wrong when a seemingly negligible personality catches the public fancy and in the most passive sort of campaign has all the old party regulars for Congress and Senate hanging onto his coat tails. There is not a single state from which the reports show the local ticket adding strength to the Coolidge cause. In every state after state reports Coolidge far out in front, and voices the hope that his majority may be sufficient to pull across state and congressional candidates by a safe, though narrow squeak.

Of course the Davis and LaFollette camps maintain that these claims of Coolidge strength, particularly in view of the admissions of likely failure to win control of House and Senate, simply show the administration leaders are whistling to keep up courage.

With the solid south for a take-off, Al Smith doing his stuff for Davis in New York and LaFollette undercutting the Republican campaign in the middle west, Democrats decline to accept the dictum that they will not be able to roll up the necessary 266 electoral votes. They even decline to consider suggestions that their real hope lies in a deadlocked election, although that appears their salvation to most unbiased observers.

And the LaFollette—well, with "Fighting Bob" just taking the stump himself, on a tour that will carry him to the Pacific coast, they insist that all hope to date is premature, that the real Progressive drive to bring Bob under the wire a winner is just beginning. "Not a deadlock, but a victory" is the LaFollette cry.

The one thing on which agreement is reached is that Coolidge will continue in the Sixty-ninth Congress.

This probability is giving the Coolidge leaders most concern. For without a decisive majority in either house it will be impossible to put into effect administrative policies requiring congressional election.

On the other hand such a situation will make doubly effective administration veto, enabling Coolidge to prevent any legislative accomplishment by the bloc system, until 1927 at the earliest.

United States imports much more flanneau than it produces.

Money Makes a Difference

By GEORGE HAMILTON

"I guess that good-for-nothing Walter Jameson will be coming home soon, now that the old man has cashed in," was the gossiping verdict in Hillsville.

Walter had never succeeded. At last his father had bought him a ticket to Nevada and told him not to let him see his face again.

Walter did not feel any particular regret at leaving a father who had never shown him any affection. But his mother had cried, and that made him feel bad—also leaving Nancy Dayton. They had been sweethearts. When he told her he loved her—the second time he came home penniless—she laughed in his face.

"I'll win you yet, Nancy," he answered and went away.

Yes, there was one person besides his mother who believed in Walter, but he did not know it. That was Elizabeth, Nancy's little sister.

And now Walter was back. And, to his mother, he was still the boy who was going to make so much of his life, though he was almost thirty.

"You are going to stay home with me, dear," she said. "It will be hard to keep things going, and your father left only two thousand in insurance."

But she looked wistfully after him the morning after his arrival, as he walked over to the Dayton house. When he reached the door he was astonished at the vision that he saw before him.

"This is my Nancy!" he gasped, staring at the beautiful young girl who stood smiling at him.

"No, I'm Elizabeth," answered the girl, blushing at his frank stare of admiration. "Nancy is out this evening. Won't you come in, Mr. Jameson?"

When he took his leave an hour later, the young man realized that, whatever his love for Nancy might have been, the image that he carried in his heart had now a striking resemblance to Elizabeth.

And he was bound in honor to ask Nancy to be his wife. That was the irony of it! When he called the next evening and met her his heart sank. How could he ever have loved Nancy, this woman with the affected air and the peevish lines about her mouth?

It was not until he was about to leave that Walter summoned up courage to say what was uppermost in his mind.

"Nancy, do you remember what I told you last time we parted?" he asked.

Nancy's heart beat quickly, but it was not with love. She had not had a proposal for six months, and she was longing for another scalp.

"No, Mr. Jameson. What was it?" she inquired archly.

"That I was coming back to marry you," he answered.

Nancy's shrill laugh pierced the air. "Well, you certainly have carried out the first part of your determination, about coming back," she answered. "But as for the second—why, I think you have another guess coming, Mr. Jameson."

He looked into Nancy's mocking face and said good-by. But that was not his last visit to the Dayton home. On the contrary, he called frequently after that—only it was to see Miss Elizabeth.

Of course, Nancy was not slow to see what was transpiring. "Well, Elizabeth, if you want my cast-off beau, of course it's all right," she said. "Only he'll always be a pauper, and if I were you I would send him right about face without delay."

That Walter had asked Nancy to marry him since his return Elizabeth did not know. The words stung her. Walter was not slow to notice the change in her manner the next time he called.

"Elizabeth, what have I done to offend you?" he pleaded.

"You haven't offended me, Mr. Jameson," replied the girl. "Only—people are saying—"

"What, dear?" asked Walter taking her hand in his.

"That—that you are making love to me because you can't get Nancy," she faltered, and tried to run away. But Walter caught her.

"Now you listen to me," he said. "It's true I did ask Nancy to marry me when I came back. But it wasn't because I loved her, Elizabeth. As soon as I saw you I knew that I had loved you all the time. It was because I felt honor bound, my dear. And when she refused me my heart just leaped up to this it was going to be you."

"How do you know it's going to be me?" asked Elizabeth.

For answer he took her in his arms and pressed his lips to hers. "Isn't it?" he demanded eagerly.

And Elizabeth said "yes." And then he told her the momentous secret which was shortly to set all the town gazing.

For it was really true. And when he bought his mother the finest house in the place, and it became known that he had made his fortune in the Jameson gold mine, all Hillsville rushed to invite him to its house.

As for Nancy—there were four new lines about her mouth forever after, two on each side, and its downward droop was decidedly accentuated.
